Yanks Cross Seille River In Surprise Offensive

Patton Troops Gain Up to 3 Miles; Most Ground Gained in Aachen Area Lost

Paris, Nov. 8 (AP).—The long stagnant Third Army front in France sprang to life amid the thunder of heavy artillery early today as Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's doughboys powered their way across the River Seille in a lightning attack on a 3-mile front between Metz and Nancy.

(A late front dispatch said the attack had registered gains up to 3 miles in its early stages.

(This dispatch said elements of three divisions, pushing out against light to moderate opposition, took a dozen villages, killed several hundred Germans and captured several hundred others.

(Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, German military commentator, said Patton had opened a "large scale attack" in an apparent attempt to break through to the Saar River, which runs along and just inside the German border some 30 miles northeast of the site of Wednesday's assault.)

Cross at Several Points

By midafternoon the doughboys had crossed the shallow, muddy Seille at several points on either side of Rouves, which is 7 miles east of Pont-a-Mousson on the Moselle River.

First reports reaching headquarters indicated the Americans were meeting only light resistance, apparently having caught the Nazis by surprise at a spot where their forces were spread thin. Unfavorable weather held air support to a minimum.

It was not yet possible to ascertain the weight of the attack, much less its potential development. First reports gave no indication that tanks had joined the battle. If previous experiences were duplicated, the Nazis could be expected to begin throwing their mobile reserves into the battle within a few hours.

Hurricane Slows Drive For Ormoc

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines (Thursday), Nov. 9 (AP).—Lashed by a raging tropical hurricane the United States Twenty-fourth Infantry Division fought in mud and slime yesterday along the winding road to Ormoc against fresh, veteran Japanese troops guarding the approaches to the enemy's port of last hope on western Leyte.

For perhaps the first time since Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces landed on eastern Leyte, October 20, today's communique claimed no advance for a 24-hour period ending at noon yesterday. Instead, it told of "heavy fighting" extending into densely wooded ridges overlooking the road where it makes a sharp horseshoe cure at Limon, 4 miles south of Carigara Bay.

The communique said a "tropical hurricane is restricting operations." The phrasing was modest. Few Yanks ever have seen such a raging storm of wind and rain which turned their foxholes into wells, soaked them through and through, and made life more miserable than usual.

Men of the Twenty-fourth peered through the driving storm in an attempt to see the Japs ahead of them on the way to Ormoc, more than 15 miles to the south. The soldiers had to fall into their water-filled holes when heavy Japanese artillery opened up.

American artillery hammered the Japanese to the rear of the battle, striking at Bivouacs, supply dumps and assembly areas ringing Ormoc.

Let's Give the President A Real Welcome

FOLLOWING THE 1936 ELECTION, and again in 1940, The Washington Post proposed that the citizens of this city give President Roosevelt a real welcome on his return from Hyde Park after reelection.

ON BOTH OCCASIONS more than 200,000 people lined the streets, bands played, Pennsylvania ave. was gay with flags and bunting, the cheers were thunderous. The President appreciated it.

LET'S DO IT AGAIN.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT plans to return to Washington at 8:30 a.m. Friday—the fourth-term President of the Republic. He faces one of the gravest periods in our history.

WASHINGTON CAN SHOW him that all citizens stand behind him—united in a common purpose to win the war and to win the peace.

WE WOULD LIKE to see Government workers and all other workers allowed sufficient time from their duties to share in this demonstration.

THE TIME IS SHORT, but with the cooperation of all, and able leadership, it can be done.

IF JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, president of the Board of District Commissioners—whose ability for quick organization of similar projects has been proved before—should consent, we would like to see him undertake the necessary arrangements.

WE FEEL CERTAIN the community will fall in behind any arrangement Commissioner Young may approve.

WHAT ABOUT IT, WASHINGTON?

V-2s Battering London Area, Nazis Claim

Faster-Than-Sound Rocket Pictured as 'Sneak' Attacker

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—The German high command declared today the London area was under bombardment by the vengeance weapon V-2, reported to be a long-range rocket which propels a ton or more of explosives over a 50-mile-high trajectory at 700 miles an hour.

"The area of greater London has been under fire by the V-1 (robot bombs) since June 15 with short interruptions and in varying strength," said the Nazi communique.

"The fire has been intensified for some weeks past by the use of a second and far more effective explosive missile, V-2."

The possibility of robot bomb attacks on the United States was acknowledged by the War and Navy Departments at Washington yesterday.

These bombs might be launched by submarines or captapult plane carriers lying offshore, the American statement said, or from one-way secrifice flights by long-range bombers controlled across the Atlantic by submarines.

No Report on Damage

(British censorship apparently forbade any direct comment on the German announcement as to whether the V-two missles were doing any damage.)

The Germans offered no description of their reported new weapon of hate, but this was not lacking from neutral sources. Associated Press Correspondent Austin Bealmear, quoting U. S. Third Army sources, wrote September 29 from "somewhere in France":

"The latest of the Germans' vengeance weapons is a 14-ton projectile with an explosive radius of three kilometers (1.8 miles). Information on V-3 (Bealmear unquestionably means V-2) was obtained by the American Third Army troops' drive into Germany."

According to this information, the projectile is 20 yards long.

Japs Step Up Evacuation Of Major Cities

Fear Well Founded, Arnold Says; 1000 More B-29s Ordered

By George Connery

Japan yesterday ordered increased evacuation of 11 major cities in preparation for the shock of "inevitable enemy air raids," while two developments in this country indicated that when the attacks come they will be massive and ceaseless.

Tokyo radio disclosed Japan's fears; a statement by Gen. H. H. Arnold, Army Air Forces head, and an order for 1000 more Boeing B-29 Superfortresses was evidence there was something to fear.

Arnold, talking in Detroit last night, said Japan will be visited by thousands of bombers daily when the air attack hits its stride.

$1,145,000,000 Backlog

In Seattle, Wash., Boeing Aircraft Co. announced receipt of a new contract for 1000 more of the giant bomb-carriers. The Army, however, would not allow the company to announce the number of B-29s already under contract.

Boeing's unfilled backlog of orders amounts to $1,145,000,000. The new contract is in addition to one for 700 of the planes recently placed with Boeing's Wichita (Kans.) plant, and will mean a continued need for manpower by the company.

C. L. Egtvedt, Boeing chairman, said "The B-29 definitely has been designated to bear the brunt of the 'softening up' program of Japan before the ultimate invasion."

Follows Raid Reports

"Young and old and pregnant women" were ordered to leave the big Japanese cities, according to a Jap cabinet decision. The announcement was recorded by Federal Communications Commission. The people were told to get out of the cities and live with relatives in the country as far as possible.

The drastic action followed unconfirmed Tokyo radio reports of three enemy reconnaissance planes

War Fund 10% Short of Goal, D. C. Drive Extended a Week

As the Community War Fund reached 90.42 per cent of its $4,850,000 goal yesterday, campaign leaders made plans to extend the closing date a week in an all-out effort to go over the top.

More than 500 volunteer workers who attended a report meeting yesterday at the U. S. Chamber of Commerce responded with vigorous "no's" when Coleman Jennings, campaign chairman, asked if they should stop short of their quota.

"It is perfectly possible for Washington in the coming eight days to do the extraordinary—to reach the largest goal in the city's history of charity," Jennings declared. "I ask you to join me in putting forth that extraordinary effort."

He announced that the last report meeting will be held next Thursday at 12:30 p. m. at the United States Chamber of Commerce. He explained that volunteers working during the coming week will continue solicitation within the structure of their unit organizations. The Capital will not be thrown open to miscellaneous solicitation. Workers who have

Way Clear For Meeting Of 'Big 3'

Vote Strengthens Roosevelt Hand; De Gaulle, Chiang May Participate

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

President Roosevelt is expected to meet Churchill and Stalin within a few weeks in a post-election conference on speeding victory in Europe and hastening plans for a world organization.

Final arrangements for the session with the British Prime Minister and Soviet Premier had waited on Tuesday's voting. Roosevelt's sweeping fourth-term triumph made it evident that he would attend the meeting with heightened prestige and a hand greatly strengthened in international affairs.

There was some peculation that General Charles de Gaulle of France and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of China might be counted in.

Guesses on where the gathering might occur ranged from Teheran, scene of the meeting a year ago, to one of Europe's liberated capitals. Wherever it is, it will furnish the focal point of international events until it begins, and will share the course of affairs long after it ends.

Foreign Policy Laid Down

The President already has laid down the following foreign policy:

1. To fight the war in Europe to unconditional surrender as quickly as possible this year if it can be done—then concentrate all needed resources, American and Allied, on Japan.

2. Organize the peace on the basis of Dumbarton Oaks plans, with the United States committing itself to use force, under a general congressional sanction, at the call of a world security council. Essential to this objective is continued harmony among the United States, Britain and Russia, with France and China in great power positions.

3 Permanently suppress Germany and Japan as war makers by Allied military occupation and industrial controls as long as necessary to make them peaceful.

4. Champion and cause of the smaller nations and recognize the rights of subject peoples everywhere to freedom. This point is more likely than any other to bring a conflict of interests with Russia, which has stressed force primarily in maintaining world security, and Britain with its colonial empire.

Hull Expected to Continue

5 Promote freer international trade. This particularly is an objective of Secretary Hull who has told associates that relaxation of trade restrictions must go right along with organized controls for peace.

Hull's intimates expect that he will remain as the President's senior cabinet officer as long as his health will permit, and certainly hopes to hold the post until after the Dumbarton Oaks plan has come up for formal action.

State Department officials say that the Secretary's health has not been basically impaired by the throat ailment which put him in

Democrats Gain House Margin of 31

Total in Chamber To Be at Least 249; Senate Status to Be About as at Present

By Robert C. Albright

Democrats yesterday ran up a House majority of 31 or more and clinched Senate controls at approximately present strength, assuring President Roosevelt of his largest Capitol working margins since the Seventy-seventh Congres.

Nearly complete election returns apparently moved total Democratic strength in the next House to at least 349, compared with the 214 hair-edge control of the present House, and 267 in the last Congress.

Late returns stabilized the Senate division at around existing party strength, although final tabulations, particularly of soldier votes, could bring more House and Senate upsetts.

The Senate division, as in the present Congress, probably will remain: Democrats, 58; Republicans, 37, and Progressive, 1.

As tardy election returns poured in, taking an ever higher toll of outstanding isolationists in both Houses, the President appeared assured of a full measure of legislative support on paramount peace as well as war issues.

Three Republicans and one Democrat with isolationist records were retired from the treaty-ratifying Senate, swelling last summer's high political death rate of nonintervention ists in the primaries.

Four Losing Senators

The three Republican isolationists scratched from the next Senate's lists were Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, James J. Davis of Pennsylvania and John A. Danaher of Connecticut. Senator Guy M. Gillette (D.), who often voted with them, was retired in Iowa.

House casualties of men who failed to go along with the President's pre-Pearl Harbor foreign policies were proportionately high.

Confirming the strong pull of Administration foreign policy in this election, final results from Illinois ousted Representative Stephen A. Day, Nye's Republican counterpart in the House.

Already Representative Hamilton Fish (R., N. Y.) had conceded defeat. Even Representative Melvin J. Maas (R. Minn.), with a far better foreign policy record than either, went down on the same count. It was Maas, who charged the Administration with suppressing a secret support on Pearl Harbor.

Some Isolationists Win

The same trend hit some men who never served in Congress, but ran with an isolationist background. Thus, Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.), easily outdistanced Richard J. Lyons, Libertyville, Ill., lawyer.

Some Senate Republicans with a non-interventionist record came through, some of them after a hard fight. This list included Senator Robert A. Taft, (R., Ohio), Charles W. Tobey, (R., N. H.), and Alexander Wiley, (R., Wis.).

Returns to D. C. Friday

President Says Election Proved Democracy's Force

Hyde Park, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP).—President Roosevelt, reelected to a fourth term in the first war-time presidential election since the Civil War, said today "we have again demonstrated to the world that democracy is a living, vital force."

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early distributed this statement from the President late this afternoon:

"For the first time in 80 years we have held a national election in the midst of war.

"What is really important is that after all of the changes and vicissitudes of four scores years, we have again demonstrated to the world that democracy is a living, vital force, that our faith in American institutions is unshaken, that conscience and not force is the source of power in the government of man.

"To that faith let us unite to win the war and to achieve a lasting peace."

Early said "bundles of telegrams and messages" arrived at the President's Hyde Park estate today. "Many of them contained the phrase, isolationism is dead,'" he said.

Early made public this message received by the President from Secretary of State Cordell Hull, now undergoing a physical checkup in a Navy Hospital at Washington.

"I extend my warmest felicitations on your reelection to the Presidency.

"Under your wise leadership our country will rededicate itself, united and strong, to the attainment of complete and speedy victory over our enemies, and to the establishment of a just and lasting peace.

"The kindest personal regards and best wishes."

Reporters asked Early if the President had received any word from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

"Not up to 5 p. m., Early replied.

The President spent a quiet day at his Hyde Park estate. He slept until noon. During the afternoon he went for an automobile ride with Henry C. Hooker, his former law partner in New York. With his personal secretary, Miss Grace Tully, he worked on correspondence for a time.

Early said the President would return to Washington about 8:30 a. m., Friday and would go to his office almost immediately.

A small dinner and a quiet evening at home closed the President's day.

FOURTH TERM ASSURED—Wearing his campaign Navy cape and brown hat, President Franklin D. Roosevelt watches neighbors' torchlight parade Tuesday night at Hyde Park, N. Y., when he was reelected to a fourth term in the White House

Results State by State

Late returns emphasized the decisive character of the election which returned Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Presidency and elected Senator Harry S. Truman of Missouri Vice President.

The following State-by-State pattern developed:

MASSACHUSETTS—The Bay State turned its Statehouse over to Democratic Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston, but popular Republican Gov. Leverett Saltonstall, who carried the indorsement of the CIO Political Action Committee, was named to the Senate. Roosevelt took the State with ease.

ILLINOIS—Boss Kelly of Chicago and the PAC rolled up a thumping Roosevelt majority in Cook County to carry the State and reelect Democratic Senator Scott Lucas who was opposed by GOP Isolationist Richard J. Lyons. But, Dwight H. Green finally secured enough of an edge to keep the governorship in Republican hands.

NEW YORK—The Empire State gave its fourth straight indorsement to Roosevelt and reelected Senator Robert F. Wagner (D), for a fourth term. Roosevelt's total was swelled by 375,000 American Labor Party votes and 310,000 from the Liberal Party. GOP Isolationist Hamilton Fish fell by the wayside.

CONNECTICUT—The nutmeg State gave its votes to Roosevelt, replaced GOP Senator John A. Danaher with Brien McMahon, 41-year-old Democratic lawyer, but voted to retain the services of Republican Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin for another two-year term.

OHIO—Democrats gained at least three House seats but Senator Robert A. Taft (R.) apparently squeaked through to reelection. The Dewey-Bricker slate held a narrowing lead which could be upset. Mayor Frank J. Lausche (D.) of Cleveland was elected Governor.

WASHINGTON—Senator Mon C. Wallgren took the governorship away from Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langlie in the Democratic surge which gave the State's eight votes to Roosevelt. Representative Warren G. Magnuson (D.) claimed election to the Senate.

PENNSYLVANIA—Majorities from the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh industrial centers put the Keystone State in the Roosevelt column and threatened to replace Republican Senator James J. Davis with Democratic Representative Francis J. Myers.

MISSOURI—This border State named Democrat Phil M. Donnelly Governor and gave its electoral vote to Roosevelt, but Republican Gov. Forrest C. Donnell held a slight lead for the Senatorship which could be upset by soldier ballots.

NEW JERSEY—A see-saw battle for this State's electoral votes apparently ended with a victory for Roosevelt, but Republican H. Alexander Smith was leading Hague-supported Elmer H. Wene for the Senatorship. Boss Hague succeeded in defeating proposed changes in the State constitution which would have stripped him of power.

NEW HAMPSHIRE—This New England State gave its electoral votes to Roosevelt, but voted to keep the governorship in Republican hands by giving the job to Mayor Charles M. Dale of Portsmouth. Republican Charles W. Tobey apparently held onto his Senate seat.

IDAHO—Singing Cowboy Glen Taylor was swept into the Senate on the Roosevelt tide, with the Potato State giving the governorship to Democrat Charles C. Gossett.

NEBRASKA—A State-wide prohibition referendum was licked as the Cornhuskers voted a straight Republican ticket overwhelmingly, reelecting four GOP Congressmen and returning Gov. Dwight Griswold.

KANSAS—The Sunflower State gave Dewey a topheavy majority and reelected Republican Andrew F. Schoeppel Governor.

NEVADA—Democrat Pat McCarran apparently was returned to the Senate, as this thinly populated State added its votes to the Roosevelt column.

COLORADO—Mountainous Colorado went for Dewey, apparently reelecting Gov. John C. Vivian and Senator Eugene D. Millikin, but Denver gave a lead to Charles Graham over GOP incumbent Dean M. Gillespie in a Congressional race.

RHODE ISLAND—This normally Democratic State gave Roosevelt a 44,000 plurality, largest yet in the Nation's smallest State in four contests. J. Howard McGrath was reelected Governor in the Democratic sweep and the two incumbent Congressmen were returned.

INDIANA—The Hoosiers turned an early Democratic lead into a slight Republican margin as the returns poured in. Industrialist Homer Capehart was nosing out Democratic Gov. Henry F. Schricker for the Senate, while Democratic Senator Samuel D. Jackson trailed lawyer Ralph Gates for the governorship.

IOWA—This corn belt State sent Republican Gov. Bourke B. Hickenlooper to the Senate, elected Republican Lieut. Gov. Robert B. Blue to the governorship and gave Dewey a 39,000 vote majority.

MINNESOTA—Bailiwick of Senator Joseph H. Ball, who bolted the Republican ticket to support Roosevelt, this State gave its vote to Roosevelt, but reelected Republican Edward J. Thye Governor. Republican Representative Melvin Maas trailed.

MICHIGAN—A tug-of-war for Michigan's electoral votes developed as Detroit returns narrowed an out-State Republican margin. A mix-up in counting 50,000 Detroit area ballots left the outside in doubt. Incumbent Republican Gov. Harry F. Kelly apparently was reelected.

WISCONSIN—Isolationist Republican Senator Alexander Wiley was reelected as the dairy State gave a small lead to Dewey. Gov. Walter S. Goodland (R.), and all other State officials were reelected in the GOP avalanche.

CALIFORNIA—Roosevelt's margin in California seemed sufficient to pull other Democratic candidates to victory including Senator Sheridan Downey, running for reelection.

President Urges Unity For Victory And Peace

Expected to Confer Soon With Stalin, Churchill; Due in Capital Tomorrow

By Edward T. Folliard

President Franklin D. Roosevelt, preparing to return to the White House tomorrow from Hyde Park, yesterday saw his stunning lead in Tuesday's election mount in size as late returns brought more and more States into his victory column.

The President himself, his prestige enhanced in the eyes of the world by his fourth-term triumph, was looking ahead, and it was expected that he soon would hold another Big Three meeting with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Marshal Joseph Stalin, possibly abroad.

In his first public utterance since he overwhelmed Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent, at the polls, President Roosevelt yesterday issued a statement calling on the people to "unite to win the war and to achieve a lasting peace."

Totals Still Unsettled

The situation in the electoral college was still unsettled, but as of last night the standing was as follows:

Roosevelt—35 States with 413 electoral votes.

Dewey—13 States with 118 electoral votes.

The Republican standard bearer was still ahead in Michigan, the State of his birth, but there were indications that Michigan's 19 electoral votes would wind up in the Roosevelt column.

Governor Dewey's lead in Ohio was cut so sharply yesterday that there were suggestions that he might lose its 25 electoral votes also. Late reports from Cleveland, however, indicated that Ohio would remain in the Dewey-Bricker column.

Would Make It 432-99

If Michigan should go to Roosevelt and Ohio stay with Dewey, and providing the other States remained in place, the final score would be:

Roosevelt—36 States with 432 electoral vots.

Dewey—12 States with 99 electorial votes.

This would compare with 59 for Herbert Hoover in 1932, 8 for Alf Landon in '36, and 82 for Wendell Willkiel n '40.

The popular votein Tuesday's election was much closer. As compiled by the Associated Press, it showed:

Roosevelt	21,724,603
Dewey	19,155,488
Total	40,880,091

Ballots were still being counted and there were indications that the total vote might equal or exceed the 1940 record of 49,548,221. Thousands of ballots cast by men and women in the armed services have not yet been counted, and some of them will remain locked up for weeks.

On the basis of the popular vote so far, President Roosevelt's percentage is 53.1. At the same stage in 1940, in his contest with Willkie, it was 54.2.

Believed on 5-3 Basis

It was impossible to get a clear-cut picture of how the soldier-sailor vote went, but from isolated tallies the Associated Press estimated that the men and women in uniform balloted about 5 to 3 to keep their Commander-in-Chief.

To judge from a remark made by Governor Dewey yesterday, the 1944 standard bearer considers himself eliminated as a possible contender for the White House four years from now. As he was leaving GOP campaign headquarters in New York, somebody asked him about his plans for the future. He replied:

"I have no illusions about 1948."

The Republican Party has never given the Presidential nomination to a candidate defeated four years before.

Reds Massing For Decisive Blow

War Sidelights

Hitler Fails To Go on Air, Fete Held Up

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—The German radio announced tonight that "because of Germany's total mobilization" the annual Nazi Party celebration at Munich of the abortive 1923 Munich Beer Hall putsch could not be held tonight as usual but "will take place at a later date."

Thus it appeared that for the first time Adolf Hitler would let this greatest of Nazi Party holidays pass without making his usual speech.

Earlier neutral correspondents had cabled they had been informed the party expected Hitler to speak.

When he had not gone on the air by 8 p. m. (3 p. m. E. W. T.), a ghost voice interrupted the German radio program, asking, "why doesn't Hitler speak? Why does the Fuehrer keep silent? What is the matter with Hitler?"

Hitler has been absent from the microphone since July 21, following the bomb attempt on his life.

Nazi General Killed

Paris, Nov. 8 (AP).—The German General von Brodowsky, commander of troops who laid waste the entire town of Oradour in central France, was killed by a member of the FFI while trying to escape prison at Besancon, the newspaper Franctireur reported today.

Cigaret Rations Cut

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Weekly cigarette rations for American troops in England will be cut from seven to five packs, starting Monday, the Army announced today. The order is expected to assure front line troops more smokes.

New Jap Ship Reported

San Francisco, Nov. 8 (AP).—Japan has a new, small, streamlined wooden ship which will use a "substitute fuel," Tokyo radio reported today.

Poles Advance, But Nazis Hold Forli Airfield

Rome, Nov. 8 (AP).—Polish troops "continue to make good progress" south of Forli near the eastern end of the Italian battlefront, the Allied command announced today, but Germans still clung to shattered buildings on the Forli airfield.

The Germans held on at the airfield, two miles southeast of Forli, in the face of persistent bombing and a sharp attack by medium bombers yesterday on German positions closer to the town. Near Forli British troops remained in close contact under heavy enemy shelling.

With improving weather Eighth Army troops were increasingly active all along the front. Polish troops in the hills between the Rabbi and Montone rivers south of the Rimini-Bologna highway captured Monte Casaluda and several other dominating features.

Farther West, San Rufillo, on Highway 67 running southwest of Forli, was cleared of the enemy and forward troops pushed a mile toward Dovadola, about 10 miles from Forli.

Fifth Army units generally confined their activity to vigorous patrolling, although in the extreme west Negro troops of the United States Ninety-second Infantry Division followed up a slight German withdrawal.

Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied Commander in Chief in the Mediterranean theater, declared in an order marking the second anniversary of the Allied landing in North Africa, that "the importance of our share in the war in Europe is as great as ever and will remain so until the end."

He praised the Allied troops for their "great victories" and told them that "victory is certain; let us see to it that it is not long delayed."

WAR

was the First Army's bloody struggle for the Hurtgen Forest gateway to the Rhine southheast of Aachen in Germany, which had raged through six days.

Hurtgen Attack "Runs Down"

(A front dispatch said the Hurtgen attack had "run down," with loss of most of the ground gained in its early phases. Kommerscheidt, a village between Vossenack and Schmidt, was lost Wednesday and Yank infantry was driven back 500 yards to high ground to the northwest.

("But considerable progress has been made in clearing Hurtgen Forest, and the Germans suffered severe casualties, especially to our superior artillery, the dispatch said. Vossenack still was the scene of heavy house-to-house fighting, with each side holding approximately haft the town.)

A heavy 36-hour downpour hompered operations in the French sector east of Luneville and Remiremont, where American and French troops have been making steady progress into the upper Vosges foothills for several days.

Attack Beaten Off

Two to three miles west of the Gerardmer, entrance to Schluct Pass, the Germans counterattacked strongly with two battalions of fresh troops. French troops beat off the attack after stiff fighting.

There was little change on the Holland front. Fighting still was in progress northeast of Domburg on Walcheren Island and near the approcahes to the wrecked Moerdijk bridges across the Maas River.

.....C..... INV. etcoman

It was confirmed that both the road and rail bridges at Arnhem were destroyed.

(A staff officer with the British Twenty-first Army Group said the month-old offensive in southwest Holland had netted between 38,000 and 40,000 German prisoners, with an equal number of the enemy killed and wounded. "Now the Boche wants to know where we are going to strike next," the officer observed, "and in good time we shall undoubtedly let him know.")

Vital Nazi Centers Target of Russians, Stalin Proclaims

London, Nov. 8 (AP).—Russian armies were moving into position tonight for the blows described by Premier Stalin as "the decisive offensive against the vital centers of Germany."

The massing of men and materials along the Eastern front has brought a lull in the fighting, and for the third consecutive day the Soviet communique said there were "no essential changes at the front."

The Berlin radio said, "if one can speak of comparative calm on the Eastern Front, it is certainly the calm before the storm."

Budapest Likely Objective

One of the first of the new blows may be struck at Budapest, under close siege by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army and in increasing danger of being surrounded.

Berlin reported new concentrations of Soviet tanks in the outskirts of the Hungarian capital, while a German military commentator stated the Russians had attacked from Tisza River bridgeheads north of Szolnok and succeeded in advancing toward Budapest from the east.

Stories of open revolt inside Budapest continued to come from European radios. The Paris station said street fighting took place in the Pest section of the city on the east bank of the Danube and that some Hungarian soldiers and workers joined the Russian forces. Quoting neutral correspondents, the Brussels radio stated Soviet artillery had been installed in Pest. There was no indication from Moscow, however, that Soviet troops actually were inside the capital.

Heavy Red Troop Action

The Germans have described heavy Soviet troop movements in southern Poland west of the Vistula, saying an offensive soon will be aimed toward Krakow.

Another front where heavy new blows may soon be struck stretched from Tukums southwest to the Baltic port of Liepaja in western Latvia. West of this line the Russians have more than 30 German divisions trapped.

East Prussia also was expected to be a theater of violent battle this winter.

five and a half feet in diameter and weighs 14 tons at the take-off.

"It is propelled by a mixture of liquid air and alcohol and is shot into the air vertically," Bealnear wrote.

Faster Than Sound

Swedish reports have described V-2 as a "flying telegraph pole" with tail fins like an ordinary bomb. Some 50 feet long, it was said to shoot a comet's tail behind it and travel faster than sound, so that it strikes before it is heard.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, British minister, warned last week that the people of the United Kingdom must be prepaed fror attacks by "weapons militarily less futile than the flying bomb."

The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet declared the German command's announcement "means that V-12 is definitely out of the experimental stage and will be used against London to its full."

A threat of still more "surprises" from the Germans was broadcast by the German-controlled Budapest radio.

The Nazis used buzz bombs as leaflet distributors over England this week, the propaganda sheets saying that "bombs now burst on England and nobody knows where they come from.' '

Heavy Damage Claimed

London, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—German broadcasts said tonight that London's great Euston railroad station had been destroyed by a V-2 bomb and that heavy hamage had been done to other buildings in London and its suburbs.

Late tonight, after a steady stream of propaganda regarding V-2, German radios broadcast that morning newspapers Thursday would advise Germans to check their gas masks regularly, keep them clean and dry and make sure they fitted well.

Cigar Price Raised By OPA to Boost Production

Along with the fourth term Americans will get a good 7½-cent cigar, OPA yesterday having raised the price ceiling on lower-priced smoking tobacco to "increase production."

The 7½-cent model will be the old 6-cent number, but at the new price manufacturers are expected to up their output considerably and customers to benefit accordingly. At present, it was pointed out, the price structure encourages higher priced cigars and consumers are spending about 50 million dollars more for cigars annualyy than they will have to when higher-priced low-priced lines come back on November 13.

ARNOLD

seen over Honshu, main Jap island, in the last week.

Scheduled to start November 15, the new decentralization program includes Tokyo, Yokohama, Osaka, Kobe, Kawasaki, Yokosuka, Nagoya, Moji, Kokura, Tobata and Yamada. It is the largest mass-evacuation yet ordered, although previously 1,000,000 have been reported removed from greater Tokyo.

Arnold, talking before the Economic Club of Detroit, said the same death and destruction that has made life "hardly worth living" in Germany was in store for Japan.

In addition to his position as commanding general of the Army Air Forces, Arnold is commander of the Twentieth Air Force, whose B-29s now are the only craft able to raid Japan. They strike the Jap homeland from bases in China, while from bases in India other Superfortresses are attacking Japan's holdings to the south.

"Today we are moving step by step nearer and nearer to Tokyo, until finally that time comes when the Japanese will experience the daily visits of thousands of bombers," he said.

Any large-scale air assault against the Jap islands, he pointed out, requires operating bases within striking distance, land masses suitable for this use. In addition, in the Pacific supply lines are much longer than in Europe and terrain, living conditions and climate are much more unfavorable.

Production Unchecked

Arnold also emphasized that Japanese fighter plane production "is as yet unchecked." "The quicker we disrupt and destroy Jap plane production," he said, "the fewer fighters our men will have to meet in the air."

The AAF commanding general compared our offensive in the Pacific to the movement of a vast machine over tremendous areas of land and sea, advancing inexorably toward the heart of the Japanese Empire. The closer we come to Japan proper, the tougher is the opposition, because Japan, like Germany, has withdraw froces from her outposts to defend her homeland.

Arnold cited October statistics of the Eighth Air Force, based in England, to show the tempo of bombing attack against German industry. In the one month, the Eighth's Fortresses and Liberators flew 20,000 sorties against German targets, dropping a greater tonnage of bombs than in any similar period. Fighter-bombers went on more than 30,000 sorties.

Figures for October, too, indicated progress made in neutralizing the unfavorable factor of weather in Europe. Because of new instruments and techniques, Arnold said, "we have been able to bomb through overcast without seeing our targets, and we are hitting and destroying these targets."

Proof of this is the fact that in October, 1943, Eighth Air Force bombers were grounded 24 days due to weather, whereas in the same month this year they were able to go out on all but 13 days.

The men who are fighting in Europe "don't believe that the war is nearly over, or that we can take a 'breather' before finishing off Japan," he declared. This is brought home to Air Forces men by the flak opposition, now intense over valuable targets. Germans, in retreating from occupied countries, brought home antiaircraft guns "by the hundreds" to protect their key industries.

CONFER

Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., over three weeks ago.

America's position in foreign affairs is regarded here as strengthened by the fact that Hull, on the Democratic side, and John Foster Dulles, Dewey's foreign policy adviser, on the Republican side, removed discussion of the Dumbarton Oaks plan from political controversy.

Foreign Reaction Not Startling

Foreign reaction to the Chief Executive's victory failed to startle diplomatic Washington, which believed that the real results abroad, especially in enemy countries, would be days or weeks showing up.

The Berlin radio's comment was an effort to link the President's reelection with his friendship for Stalin and to claim that as a result "the American people will be burdened with very great sacrifices."

Military authorities here are watching carefully for Germany's reactions—as expressed in acts. There is some belief that the Nazi high command had staked a part of its strategy on prolonging the war until after the election to see whether there was any remote chance of obtaining thereby an easier peace.

Allied governments were generally reported to favor Roosevelt's reelection although foreign officials kept quiet on this strictly internal affair of the United States.

Greece Laid Waste By Fleeing Nazis, Eden Declares

London, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Anthony Eden's first statement in Commons today on his trips to Egypt, Athens and Italy after leaving the Moscow conference, was devoted mainly to problems he found in Greece.

Eden said, "I don't believe that informed opinion in this country yet fully understands how complete, how merciless, how dastardly has been the devastation inflicted by the German armies in Allied lands as they have been forced to withtdraw.

Eden described Greece's systematic destruction at the hands of the Germans as designed "to bring to a standstill the whole life of the nation" and then added that Port Piraeus had been partially reopened by the British navy and Royal Engineers and that it is hoped soon to unload 130,000 tons of goods in Greece monthly.

2 Furniture Loads Ready for Soldiers At Bolling Field

Two truckloads of furniture will be arranged in a day rom of the Army Air Band at Bolling Field tomorrow by the Camp and Hospital Service of Montgomery, whose members have been working for several weeks in reconditioning the pieces at Camp and Hospital headquarters in Silver Spring.

Commenting that the furniture was contributed in varying conditions, Mrs. Olivier Ragonnet, chairman, said yesterday that original owners would be surprised to see the articles put into better shape.

The next room to be made ready by the service wil be the memorial room in one of the permanent barracks at Fort Meade. The women are now at work repairing choice furniture already given for this room, which will be in memory of Montgomery men who have been killed in this war.

SUMMARY

ARIZONA—A $60 at 60 pension proposal was turned down by Arizona as it gave its votes to Roosevelt and swept in the rest of the Democratic ticket.

NORTH DAKOTA—Isolationist Republican Gerald P. Nye received a conclusive trouncing in his race for reelection to the Senate by Democratic Gov. John Moses, but the Statehouse was turned over to Republican Fred G. Aandahl. In a nip-and-tuck electoral race, Dewey apparently emerged with a slight edge.

UTAH—President Roosevelt took Utah easily, but Gov. Herbert B. Maw (D.) battled to hold onto a slight lead for reelection. Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D.), thoroughgoing supporter of the Administration, was reelected.

WYOMING—Dewey held an edge in Wyoming, but not by much. The State's lone Representative in Congress, Republican Frank A. Barrett, was reelected.

MISSISSIPPI—A 12-to1 majority for Roosevelt was rolled up in this bastion of the solid South.

ARKANSAS—This Southern State only gave Roosevelt a 5-to-2 majority—smallest since 1928. Naturally, Democratic candidate Ben Laney was elected Governor.

WEST VIRGINIA—Soft coal miners turned their backs on John L. Lewis and helped roll up a thumping majority for Roosevelt, electing Democrat Clarence W. Meadows Governor.

OREGON—Roosevelt picked up a slight lead with late returns, but Wayne L. Morse and Guy Cordon, Republicans, were elected to the Senate.

VERMONT—Rock-ribbed Vermont went down the line for the GOP, returning Senator George Aiken and naming Lieut. Gov. Mortimer R. Proctor to the governorship. Dewey received a bigger margin than Willkie in 1940.

MAINE—This corner of the United States also gave Dewey a bigger majority than it gave Willkie. Dewey carried 11 of the State's 31 cities.

TEXAS—The "regulars" who almost maneuvered the State out of Roosevelt's hands in a State convention trailed a poor third as the President piled up a huge majority.

VIRGINIA—The Old Dominion piled up an unusually large Republican vote, but stayed by its traditions and gave the Democrats a majority.

LOUISIANA—Another State that was never in doubt. Louisiana gave its 10 votes to Roosevelt.

FLORIDA—The entire Democratic ticket rode to victory.

SOUTH DAKOTA—A thumping Republican majority was rolled up by South Dakota, but the vote was light. Republican Gov. M. Q. Sharpe was reelected as was GOP Senator Chan Gurney and the State's two Republican Congressmen.

MARYLAND—The Free State, gave its votes to Roosevelt and Senator Millard Tydings was reelected.

TENNESSEE—Roosevelt piled up a comfortable margin in Tennessee where Democrat Jim Nance McCord was elected Governor.

KENTUCKY—The Blue Grass State gave President Roosevelt a substantial majority. Senate Majority Leader Alben Barkley proved enough of a vote getter to reelect himself.

SOUTH CAROLINA—Democratic as ever, South Carolina piled up a mountainous majority for Roosevelt.

GEORGIA—This peach-growing State rolled out the vote for Roosevelt.

ALABAMA—This State went down the line for Roosevelt without wavering.

NORTH CAROLINA—Never in doubt, North Carolina named Roosevelt, and elected Democrat R. Gregg Cherry to the governorship.

DELAWARE—Walter W. Bacon was reelected as this State's Republican Governor, even though its electoral vote went to Roosevelt.

NEW MEXICO—Democratic Governor John J. Dempsey held a lead for reelection. The State, classified doubtful by the polls, went for Roosevelt easily.

OKLAHOMA—The Roosevelt in this State of oil wells and cattle apparently was sufficient to elect Cherokee Indian Dennis Bushyhead to Congress in a race that was expected to result in a Republican upset. Incumbents apparently prevailed in other districts.

MONTANA—Mountainous Montana voted for Roosevelt, but reelected Republican Sam C. Ford to the governorship.

Australian Brides Told They Must Sail Like Troops

Sydney, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—A statement issued by the American Consulate General and the United States War Shipping Administration said today Australian brides of United States Servicemen who travel to the United States must be prepared to accept the accommodation provided for United States Army and Navy personnel.

The statement was made in reply to recent complaints of overcrowding and lack of facilities on United States vessels.

The statement says that "at present American vessels operating between the United States and Australia are either owned by or on charter to, or operated by the United States Government for the prosecution of the war. The transportation of civilian passengers aboard these vessels is entirely incidental to their wartime use. Any passenger who accepts passage on these ships must perform for themselves many services which on private vessels would be furnished by the steamship lines."

War Ballots Key to Davis, Roe Contest

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—With Maryland's eight electoral votes solidly in President Roosevelt's column, attention swung tonight to the single Free State Congressional contest still in doubt—that between Democrat Dudley G. Roe and Republican Wilmer Fell Davis on the Eastern Shore.

Revised unofficial totals for all of the First Congressional District's 199 polling places gave Roe, Sudlersville feed dealer and former State Senate majority leader, a margin of 424 votes over his Republican opponent, who is State Senate minority leader. Roe had 28,446 votes to Davis' 28,870.

Davis Has Chance

With 2665 absentee ballots to be counted when the official canvass is made tomorrow, there still was a possibility that Senator Davis, Federalsburg poultry and egg dealer, could win.

Absentee ballots will be counted throughout the State tomorrow by the supervisors of elections, who will also make the official tally at that time.

However, the 36,920 absentee votes—principally from service personnel—were expected to make little difference in the more than 17,000-vote plurality given President Roosevelt and the 110,000-vote majority returned for Senator Tydings, incumbent Democrat, over Blanchard Randall, jr., Baltimore businessman who was the Republican nominee.

4 Incumbents Renamed

Nor was any change foreseen in the various congressional races, which saw four incumbent U. S. Representatives reelected, three of them Democrats.

Many of the election boards also left until tomorrow the tabulation of voting on the six proposed constitutional amendments.

Early returns indicated, however, that only two would be defeated—one to eliminate a requirement that the General Assembly consent to all bequests to churches and another to permit the Assembly to legislate transfers of judges from one circuit to another.

Running ahead by approximately two-to-one was the most controversial of the six, the so-called Bond plan for reduing the size of the court of appeals from eight to five judges and to make changes in the judicial circuits.

Court Plan Wins

With 823 of the State's 1328 polling places reported, the court amendment had a favorable vote of 86,364 to 41,817.

Other totals included:

President: (1320 of 1328 polling places)—Roosevelt, 295,259; Dewey, 279,153.

Senate: (1318 of 1328 polling places)—Tydings, 318,542; Randall, 206,487.

Second Congressional District: (404 of 412 polling places)—Representative Baldwin, Democrat, 88,939; McQuaid, Republican, 69,587.

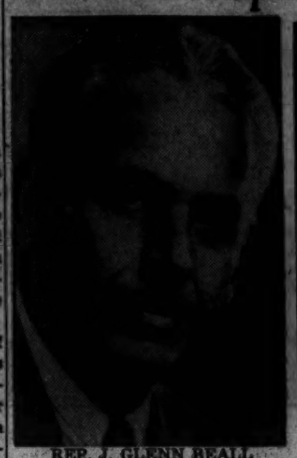
Third Congressional District: (Complete)—Representative D'Alesandro, Democrat, 38913; Benson; Republican, 13,581.

Fourth Congressional District: (Complete)—Fallon, Democrat, 44,984; Representative Ellison, Republican, 30,734.

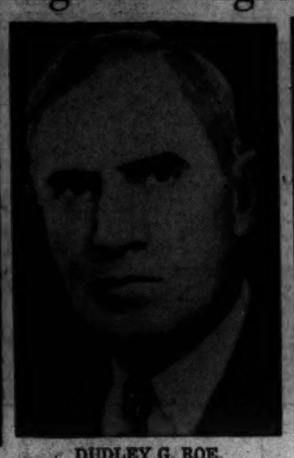
Fifth Congressional District: (178 of 180 polling places)—Representative Sasscer, Democrat, 47,279; Weidemeyer, Republican, 26,520.

Sixth Congressional District: (Complete)—Representative Beall, Republican, 60,142; McMullen, Democrat, 42,930.

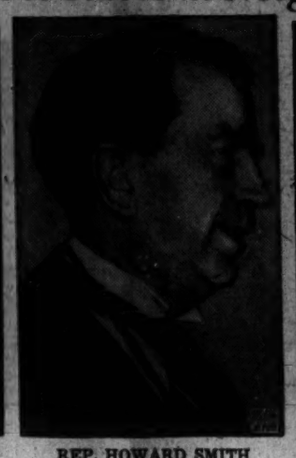
Winners in Spotlighted Congress Races in Neighbor States



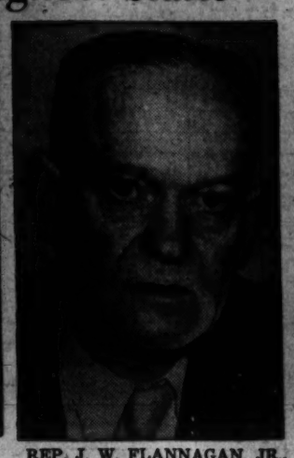
REP. J. GLENN BEALL of the Sixth Maryland District, was the lone Republican reelected in that State. He was given strong opposition by Daniel F. McMullen, Cumberland attorney and publisher



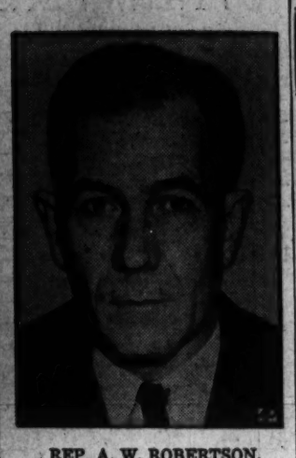
DUDLEY G. ROE, State Senator and Democrat, was elected in the First Maryland District but only after a see-saw battle with Republican State Senator Wilmer F. Davis. Roe beat Representative Ward in primary



REP. HOWARD SMITH of Alexandria, Democrat, was reelected to his seventh term in the Eighth Virginia District by a large margin despite vigorous opposition by two of his three opponents



REP. J. W. FLANNAGAN, JR., Democrat, won reelection in the "Fighting Ninth" Virginia District but his Republican opponent, Ralph L. Lincoln, put up a stirring fight and came surprisingly close



REP. A. W. ROBERTSON, Democrat, was reelected in the Seventh Virginia District over strong opposition by D. Wampler Earman, Republican

Virginia Retains Standing in 'Solid South' Despite Strongest GOP Vote in 16 Years

Maryland Picks Winner Again

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—Maryland's unmatched record of returning popular pluralities for the wining Presidential candidate extended today through 14 consecutive elections.

Beginning with the election of Grover Cleveland to a second term in 1892, Maryland has returned a plurality for the winner in every election. The closest the State came to missing was in 1904, when it returned only a 51-vote margin for Theodore Roosevelt over A. B. Parker.

Yesterday's election in Maryland was the closest since 1924, as the State returned a plurality of approximately 17,000 votes for President Rosevelt.

Returns 9 Democratic Congressmen; Big Roosevelt Margin

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—Virginia stuck with the Solid South, gave Roosevelt her 11 electoral votes and returned 9 Democratic Congressmen to office in yesterday's election, but with a greatly reduced Democratic majority.

The Republican vote was the largest since 1928, when the State entered the Republican column for the first time since reconstruction. With 1646 of the 1715 precincts in the State tabulated, Roosevelt received 238,088 votes to 143,755 for Dewey, a plurality of 95,333.

In 1940, the final tabulation was Roosevelt 235,961, Willkie 109,363, a plurality of 127,296. Four years ago the Democrats won all of the 24 cities and all but 7 of the 100 counties, but on the basis of returns today it appeared that the cities of Winchester and Harrisonburg and 19 counties had voted themselves into the Republican column.

GOP Makes Strong Bids

Strong bids were made by the Republicans in the Seventh and Ninth Districts especially, and a substantial percentage of the returns was necessary to determine the result in the congressional races.

The result in the congressional contests:

First District—153 of 161 precincts, Bland (D.), 20,283, Johnson (R.), 11,459.

Second District—131 of 134 precincts, Daughton (D.), 21,165, Woodward (R.), 9317; Shafer (Ind.), 6269. Daughton won for both the unexpired term of Winder R. Harris and for a new term.)

Third—Dave E. Satterfield (D.), unopposed.

Fourth—Patrick H. Drewry (D.), unopposed.

Fifth—173 of 236 precincts, Burch (D.), 20,043; Carwile (Ind.), 3767.

Sixth—178 of 187 precincts, Woodrum (D.), 30,349; Strickler (R.), 13,593; Wilkes (Soc.), 116.

Seventh—238 of 256 precincts, Robertson (D.), 23,321; Earman (R.), 15,650.

Eighth—204 of 217 precincts, Smith (D.), 29,159, Murray (Ind. Dem.), 11,991; Michael (Ind. Rep.), 7716; Robb (Soc.), 615.

Ninth—208 of 249 precincts, Flannagan (D.), 30,011; Lincoln (R.), 23,930.

Amendments Adopted

Two constitutional amendments were adopted by big majorities. One creates a pardon board with the power to commute capital punishment and grant reprieves and pardons. The other "freezes" the State's Literary Fund, from which loans are made to localities to build school buildings, at 10 million dollars.

Roosevelt led in every congressional district, but he trailed Representative A. Willis Robertson in the Seventh, indicating that many who voted split their ballots between the major parties. Roosevelt also trailed Representative Howard W. Smith in the Eighth.

Complete returns showed that Dewey carried the City of Winchester, 1095 to 1000, and the City of Harrisonburg, 1302 to 1291. Representative Robertson easily carried Winchester, 1354 to 545, but lost Harrisonburg to his opponent, D. Wampler Earman, who lives in that city, 1175 to 1413.

Dewey was leading Roosevelt in these counties: Fifth District—Carroll, Grayson and Wythe; Sixth District, Floyd and Montgomery; Seventh District — Bath, Highland, Page, Rockingham and Shenandoah; Eighth District—Albemarle, Arlington, Fairfax, Greene, Madison, Stafford; Ninth District—Scott, Smyth and Washington. Several other counties showed tiny majorities for Roosevelt, the President winning Botetourt, Roanoke and King George Counties by a very small vote.

With over 200 precincts still to report, the total vote had passed the record total of over 345,000 cast four years ago. The heavy vote and the constitutional amendments slowed the tabulation.

Here's how the voting went in the congressional districts: First—155 of 161 precincts, Roosevelt 20,897, Dewey 9594. Second—132 of 134 precincts, Roosevelt 31,580, Dewey 10,460. Third—115 of 125 precincts, Roosevelt 29,745, Dewey 11,605. Fourth—119 of 150 precincts, Roosevelt 15,249, Dewey 4474. Fifth—175 of 236 precincts, Roosevelt 19,390, Dewey 12,958. Sixth—173 of 197 precincts, Roosevelt 26,238, Dewey 10,075. Seventh—238 of 256 precincts, Roosevelt 21,332, Dewey 19,843. Eighth—214 of 217 precincts, Roosevelt 25,261, Dewey 23,724. Ninth—186 of 249 precincts, Roosevelt 26,112, Dewey 20,613.

38,475 Virginia Soldier Ballots

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—Virginians in the armed service have sent in 38,475 out of the 70,355 ballots mailed out to them, according to an official total given today by John S. Carlton, chief clerk of the War Voters Commission.

A breakdown by districts of the number of applications received for the ballots, and number of ballots returned, today showed:

First District, applications received, 4364; ballots returned, 2567; second, 8064 and 4949; third, 8597 and 5900; fourth, 4521 and 2480; Fifth, 6083 and 3212; sixth, 8399 and 4889; seventh, 11,179 and 4328; eighth, 8225 and 5056; ninth, 10,923 and 5094.

Amendment Votes Invalid?

Richmond, Va., Nov. 8 (AP).—It was anticipated in some quarters today that Governor Darden might ask an opinion from Attorney General A. P. Staples as to whether or not Tuesday's balloting on the two constitutional amendments is invalid because of the failure of Pittsylvania County election officers to provide ballots.

Late this afternoon, however, Staples said no request for such an opinion had been received.

Both amendments, one to "freeze" the State's literary fund at 10 million dollars, and the other to establish a state pardon board, carried the rest of Virginia by a wide margin, but the largest county in the State failed to vote on them.

The general rule of law in Virginia has been that an election will not be set aside because of irregularities on the part of election officials unless it can be shown that such irregularities might have affected the result.

This point was raised more than 30 years ago in Norfolk, when a political faction challenged the election of James V. Trehy as clerk of the corporation court of Norfolk. In the litigation which resulted, it was held "where an election appears to have been fairly and honestly conducted, it will not be invalidated by mere irregularities which are not shown to have affected the result, for in the absence of fraud courts are disposed to give effect to the election when possible."

Annapolis Invalid Calls Ambulance to Vote

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8 (AP).—When an ambulance screamed to a stop at the home of Fred Psingston at Annapolis yesterday, the elderly invalid told the driver, "nobody's sick. I just needed somebody to take me to the polls."

The ambulance crew obliged, transporting the disabled man to and from the voting place in record time.

Baltimore Faces Water Shortage

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—Baltimore City faced a serious water shortage today due to lack of rain and heavy demands on the supply, Leon Small, head of the Baltimore bureau of water supply, reported.

Small said that the water level in the Prettyboy reservoir was 15 feet and 3 inches below the crest—within 7 inches of an all-time low record.

Demands for water have been averaging 166 million gallons per day, an unusually heavy amount for this time of year, Small added.

Dr. G. B. Setzler said Sexton's condition was serious.

Commonwealth's Attorney Robert B. Ely, at Jonesville, said Clyde Yount, 39, was charged with the shooting and had been released on $2500 bond.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 8 (AP).—James B. Kirby, Kent County insurance man and former postal aide to his wife, postmistress at Kennedyville, was fined $500 and costs in Federal Court today after admitted tempering with and destroying mail addresses to a business competitor.

Kennedy, 41, told Government agents that over a two-car period he had destroyed or mistreated approximately 75 pieces of mail addressed to his next-door neighbor, William B. Dukes, also an Eastern Shore insurance agent.

The Federal Diary

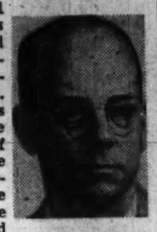
Election Raises Hopes For Civil Service Reforms

There's a feeling among Congressmen that the member who takes the lead to improve the lot of the Federal employe is flirting with political suicide. This myth should have been exploded in Tuesday's election. The results show that the sponsors of every single piece of important employe legislation were reelected, and now that they've been confirmed for another term hope was high here among employes that the Congress will vote reforms. At least the Congress will get the opportunity and the Administration can be depended on to push the reforms to the hilt. The Civil Service Commission and the Budget Bureau are mapping out a program to be presented to Congress which would benefit every single employe.



KLUTTZ

Chairman Robert Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Committee, was reelected in a sweep down in Georgia, and with the Democrats in full control of the House he's expected to retain the chairmanship. He has a bill which would reduce the waiting periods between automatic promotions for the duration of the war from 30-to-18 months, depending on salary, to 12 and 18 months. Ramspeck also has announced that it'll be time to reconsider a base pay increase for white-collar Federal workers if the Little Steel is broken and private employes are given more money.

On the Senate side, Chairman Downey won reelection in California. He has promised to get behind a broad program which would raise base salaries of Federal employes, to pay them full time and a half for overtime on a permanent basis, and to give them dismissal pay up to six months' salary if unemployment compensation isn't voted. Downey, in fact, has plans for a general overhauling of the Federal service. He told this reporter he would set up his own investigating group to go into all phases of the Federal service if he were reelected. He believes Congress has neglected the world's largest business—the Federal Government—and it is his ambition to become an authority on all its many activities. That's good.

Senator George Aiken was the only other member of the Senate committee up for reelection and he won in a walk in Vermont. He's the sponsor of a bill that has committee approval which would give employes in agencies that must reduce their forces the privilege of retiring on a full annuity after 30 years' service regardless of age. Back to the House committee—the ranking Democratic member, Rep. Jennings Randolph, is back for another term. He promises to behind his bill that would authorize Federal agencies to set up units to protect the health of the workers. Two liberal-minded GOP members who want to see the entire Civil Service system overhauled—Richard Gale of Minnesota, and Christian A. Herter of Massachusetts—have been returned. He isn't a committee member, but Rep. Clason, Massachusetts Republican, is interested in Federal Workers and he has a bill in which would raise base salaries by 25 per cent.

Another significant employe angle is the fact that several new Congressmen are former employes and they should be sympathetic to the employe viewpoint. Wayne L. Morse, the new GOP Senator from Oregon, is a former member of the War Labor Board and he, of all people, should be aware of all the inequities in the Federal pay system. The new Democratic Senator from Connecticut is Brian McMahon, a former assistant Attorney General in charge of the criminal division. He has seen hundreds of able people leave Federal jobs for the very simple reason that they could make much more money in private industry. And many would have made careers of Government if they hadn't had financial worries. Thurman Hill, former general counsel for the Procurement Division, was defeated in his bid for a Senate seat in Kansas.

Another new Senator, J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, a former Justice Department attorney, believes it is necessary that Government attract the best brains in the Nation and the Congress must take the lead by making it more attractive. We'll be hearing more of Fulbright's idea and the Senator has a habit of getting things accomplished. Senator Mead of New York is a former Capitol cop, and Representative Ramspeck used to work in the Capitol mailroom. These two very good friends of Federal workers first became interested in employe problems when they were employes themselves. Representative Carter Manasco of Alabama, a Civil Service Committee member, is a former Capitol Hill secretary; Chairman Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee is former parliamentarian of the House, and Representative Jack Cochran (R., Mo.), a House leader, is another Capitol employe. And there are many more. All this adds up to the fact that there are plenty of members in Congress who have first-hand knowledge of the employe problems.

PAC Splits Even In Maryland on Congress Races

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—The CIO's Political Action Committee split even in supporting Maryland congressional candidates in yesterday's general election, with two winners and two losers.

Representatives Thomas d'Alesandro, Third District Democrat, and Lansdale Sasscer, Fifth District Democrat, had CIO-PAC support in their successful bids for reelection, but Representative Daniel Ellison, Fourth District Republican, was defeated. The CIO-PAC also backed Wilfred T. McQuaid, Republican, in his unsuccessful effort to win the second Congressional District post from Representative H. Streett Baldwin, Democrat.

Another incumbent, Representative J. Glenn Beall, Sixth District Republican, was supported by the American Federation of Labor and the Railroad Brotherhoods, but there was no official CIO-PAC indorsement of him, or his unsuccessful Democratic opponent, Daniel F. McMullen, Cumberland attorney and newspaper publisher.

Democrats Net Two Additional Governorships

By the Associated Press

With a net gain of two governorships from Republicans, Democrats yesterday were threatening to upset one more of the 26 GOP State administrations.

Ohio, Massachusetts, Missouri and Idaho swept Democrats into top State offices previously held by Republicans. Except in Ohio, yesterday's voting reflected support of Roosevelt in the Presidential race.

Republicans won governorships in Indiana and North Dakota from the Democrats.

A see-saw race in Ohio finally turned in favor of Democrat Frank J. Lausche, bidding for the seat of Gov. John W. Bricker, the GOP Vice Presidential nominee. Lausche, mayor of Cleveland, had in 9037 of Ohio's 9306 precincts a vote of 1,525,261, while his Republican opponent, Mayor JPames Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati, had 1,439,677.

In Indiana, one of the 22 states which had Democratic governors, Republican Ralph F. Gates won over Senator Samuel D. Jackson in a race not decided until late today.

Gov. Langlie Runs Behind

In Washington State, incumbent Republican Gov. Arthur B. Langlie was trailing Senator Mon C. Wallgren, Democrat, by 25,000 at the halfway wark in the count.

Massachusetts Democrats elected as Governor 43-year-old Maurice J. Tobin, mayor of Boston, who turned back the bid of Republican Lieut. Gov. Horace T. Cahill. Tobin's margin was more than 120,000, nearly complete.

Missouri put into the governor's office Democrat Phil M. Donnelly to take the State out of the GOP column. He polled 20,000 more votes than his Republican opponent, Jean Paul Bradshaw, in 4278 of 4543 precincts counted.

Idaho voters named Democrat Charles C. Gossett over William C. Detweiler to swing the Governorship from the Republicans.

Other Contests Undecided

Outcome of Gubernatorial contests in four other states was pending, but in each case the candidate of the party in power held a lead.

Incumbent Democratic Governor Herbert B. Maw led J. Bracken Lee, Republican, in Utah, while in New Mexico, Gov. John J. Dempsey, Democrat, was ahead of Republican Carroll G. Gunderson.

Minnesota voters gave Republican Governor Edward J. Thye another term over Byron G. Allen, running as a Democrat Farmer-Laborite.

In North Dakota, Fred G. Aandahl, Republican, was elected over William T. De Puy, Democrat.

After trailing in returns through Tuesday night, incumbent Gov. Dwight H. Green, a Republican, went into the lead in Illinois to defeat Democratic State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, despite the sizeable margin the State gave to President Roosevelt.

Governorship Race Results

States electing Governors this year total 32 (including Maine, which on September 12 elected Horace A. Hildreth, Republican, for a 2-year term). These 32 offices to be filled this year now are held as follows: Democrats, 12; Republicans, 20.

Electoral Vote At Record High For Tight Race

By George Gallup
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

New York, Nov. 8.—With a popular vote lead of approximately 53.5 per cent Roosevelt ran up a greater electoral vote landslide than any other candidate in history with a comparably small popular vote percentage.

In 1916, for example, Woodrow Wilson, with 52 per cent of the popular vote, received only 277 votes. Up to this afternoon Roosevelt, with 53.5 per cent, had won a total of 407.

Early indications are that the soldier vote will go overwhelmingly for Roosevelt and will swell his majority by approximately two million votes. It was the deciding factor in at least one State—New Jersey—and may also prove decisive in several other States where returns are incomplete.

The vote of women, who turned out at polls in greater numbers in history, remained 3 per cent more Democratic than that of men right up to election day in the Institute's poll. The anticipated majority of 3,500,000 for Roosevelt is due almost entirely to his advantage with soldier and women voters.

Forecast Errs Only 1%

On the basis of election returns to date, the Gallup poll, published exclusively in Washington in The Washington Post, had forecast the civilian vote percentage for Roosevelt with an error of only 1 per cent.

Its final report published the day before election gave Roosevelt the lead with 51.5 per cent of the civilian popular vote. The soldier vote has added approximately 1 per cent to this total on the average in the States outside the South. Returns to date indicate that the final Roosevelt figure will be approximately 52.5 per cent without the soldier vote, and 53.5 per cent with it.

This third national election forecast by the Institution indicates a progressive improvement in polling techniques. Indicating the winner successfully each time, it was accurate with 6 per cent in 1936, 3 per cent in 1940 and now approximately 1 per cent.

Despite the predicted close civilian vote, the Institute showed that Roosevelt's sure States plus the close pivotal States indicated a maximum electoral vote of 446. As of this afternoon he had 407, with a likelihood of picking up 19 from Michigan and 25 from Ohio for a total of 451.

Closest Popular Vote Since 1916.

Tuesday's election was the closest since 1916 in terms of popular votes, though not in electoral votes. Roosevelt's indicated lead of 53.5 per cent compares with other recent elections as follows:

1928, Hoover 59 per cent.
1932, Roosevelt 59 per cent.
1936, Roosevelt 62.5 per cent.
1940, Roosevelt 55 per cent.
1944, Roosevelt 52.5 per cent.

Up to this month the Institute has forecast 115 local, State and national elections and has been on the right side 102 times, for a batting average of .900. The record in Tuesday's election cannot be estimated in terms of batting average until complete returns are in, but the same high batting average will probably be maintained, judging by return to date.

The chief function of polls is not to predict elections, but to measure the will of the people on public issues—to sound out their mandate on the questions which are never settled at elections. Election forecasting serves merely as a test to indicate whether this measuring instrument can report accurately the pulse of the Nation on the great issues on which the public has no other systematic means to register its sentiment.

Killers Admit Slaying Moyne In Sternist Plot

Cairo, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—The two assassins of Lord Moyne, British resident minister in the Middle East, confessed today they were members of the Stern terrorist organization sent here expressly from Palestine to perpetrate the murder, and Egyptian authorities took emergency precautions throughout the country, fearing further violence.

The assassins identified themselves as Moshe Cohen and Itzak Charles Salzmann.

"We are members of the Fighters for the Freedom of Israel organization and what we have done we did on instructions of the organization," they told questioners.

Brought Search Order

This brought an order for a national search for Sternists who might be in hiding, awaiting a chance to murder other British officials.

The Stern gang broke away at the start of the war from the Jewish extremist "Irgun Zvei Leuni" or national military organization in Palestine, which declared an "armistice" while Britain was fighting Germany. The minority, under the 30-year-old Polish-born school teacher Abraham Stern, continued terrorist activities. Stern has since been reported killed by Palestine police.

Lord Moyne's assassins said they were Sternists sent to kill him because he was head of the political department of the British government in the Middle East and was carrying out policies against the interests of Jewish nationalists.

It was the first known crime of the Stern gang outside Palestine.

250,000 Gather for Rites

About 250,000 persons lined the streets today to watch the funeral procession for Lord Moyne and Lance Cpl. Arthur Fuller, his chauffeur, who was killed with him. It was the biggest funeral gathering since the death of King Fuad in 1936.

Palestine dispatches said the Jews feared far-reaching consequences from the crime of the Sternists, denounced by Jews all over the world.

The Palestine Post of Jerusalem said editorially that "no cause is furthered by it except the cause of chaos . . . The shots fired at Lord Moyne were aimed at Palestine Jewry."

The Jewish agency in Jerusalem asked the Jewish community to make a supreme effort to wipe out the remnants of the terrorists whose actions, it was added, "are calculated to wreck our chances in our political struggle."

Chicago (U.P.).—A contender for the title of Chicago's youngest social security card holder is Karen Rushing, 3 years old. Karen has had a card since she was 5 months old, when she began modeling for commercial artists.

Unity, Victory and Opportunity!

EDITORIAL

Godspeed, Mr. President!

Godspeed in the four fateful years upon which you and we are now embarked.

Our generation has known no peace. The next four years will show whether our children shall know peace.

Our generation has known no security; has known instead, the paralyzing fear of idleness and want. The next four years will show whether our children shall know security.

There is a time for greatness. The next four years, Mr. President, will be such a time. Greatness, not only for the Presidents and the Prime Ministers of the world, but for their Congresses and Parliaments . . . and above all for their peoples.

This is a time, then, for greatness for the American people. A time for national unity.

Not the lip service and goose-step unity of a dictatorship. But a democratic unity, a free-to-criticize unity. A unity of purpose. A unity of goals. Unity, specifically on these goals: Freedom from fear. Freedom from want. Freedom of speech and religion. And freedom of opportunity.

We have just come from a critical wartime election. That it took place at all is a testament to the deep roots of our democracy and to our confidence in the strength of that democracy.

Debate was free. Each man could say what came into his mind to say. And so, hard and bitter things were said.

Hard and bitter things were said about you, Mr. President. But harder and bitterer things were said about Abe Lincoln and Andrew Jackson. Yes, and George Washington. We do not treat with reverence the men we select to serve us. The election campaign just ended had the good sense and the nonsense, the straight thinking and the distorted, the reasonableness and the passion that we in America hear in every election.

Let no hater of Democracy here or abroad take heart from the heat and fury, the name calling and the ridicule of our election campaign. Nor let the common people of the world who look to America as their hope . . . and to you, Mr. President, as the symbol of that hope . . . lose heart. For the frenzy of the campaign has ended with the sober congratulatory telegram. The partisan orator of October will be the White House caller in November.

The American people have had their election fireworks, and now they have spoken. They have declared their choice. Not only from hamlet and metropolis where men and women waited patient hours to register their franchise . . . but from foxholes and barracks where Americans did what no other fighting men could do . . . vote!

Having spoken, the American people will now close ranks. For there is work to be done. A war to win. A peace to achieve. A world to build in which men never again will cast ballots from foxholes or seek bread in breadlines. A world in which there will be work for our children and an opportunity to realize the dreams and hopes and genius that are in them.

Toward that goal we set our faces.

And on that journey with all of us together . . . in unity . . . may God speed you, Mr. President!

'Gutter Talk' in D. C. Offices Assailed by Church Leader

Dr. Reissig Reports Complaints Made By Warworkers

"Gutter conversation" in Government bureaus and other offices in the Nation's Capital was assailed last night by Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, Federation of Churches' executive secretary, following complaints reaching his office from war workers "offended and embarrassed" by off-color stories.

"My attention has been drawn by several persons to the low-grade talk and stories which are current in many of our offices, including many Government bureaus," declared Dr. Reissig. "This is by no means a new phenomenon. We know something of the level of conversation at many a factory bench or assembly line.

"Many decent folk think they have to listen and laugh at these gutter outpourings, lest they be called prude. It's high time that folk who still see something sacred in life let gutter minds know in no uncertain terms that they are not interested in their moral debauchery."

Disfranchised In Fairfax, Attorney Says

Declaring that he was disfanchised in Tuesday's election through refusal of election judges at Pulman Precinct in Fairfax County to accept a transfer of his registration from Alexandria, John Talbert Haslett of 4 Boothe pl., Belle Haven, principal trial attorney for the Federal Trade Commission, said yesterday that he expects to take his case to court after a further study of the Virginia election laws this week.

Haslett said he has been registered in Alexandria since 1928 and was issued a transfer of registration to the precinct for his new residence in Fairfax County by Fred Pettitt, city registrar of Alexandria last May. The transfer indicated his name was on the books, he said, and the State law requiring entry of a name in the registration records for the precinct in which he was voting 30 days before the election did not apply in his case.

A ruling from Commonwealth Attorney Hugh Marsh of Fairfax County obtained by W. F. P. Reid and Arthur Shaffer, precinct judges, that under Section 100 of the Virginia Election Code requiring registration 30 days before election, Haslett should have brought his transfer to be entered by the Pulman precinct registrar, Mrs. Nellie Bolling, before the books closed, was described as a "curbstone opinion" by Haslett

Amazing results shown in improving the Looks... boosting VITALITY!

1—Promote the flow of vital digestive juices in the stomach
2—Energize your body with RICH, RED BLOOD!

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 50 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its balance and function properly. Undigested food places a tax on the system...insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.

If you are subject to poor digestion or suspect deficient red-blood as the cause of your trouble, yet have no organic complication or focal infection, SSS Tonic may be just what you need!

SSS Tonic is especially designed (1) to promote the flow of VITAL DIGESTIVE JUICES in the stomach and (2) to build-up BLOOD STRENGTH when deficient. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat . . . to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality . . . pep . . . become animated . . . more attractive!

Build Sturdy Health and Help America Win

PAC Plans Permanent Political Role

By Ben W. Gilbert

The CIO Political Action Committee which helped roll up maporities for President Roosevelt in the larger cities will be a continuing part of the American scene, it was learned yesterday.

Plans are being drawn, it was learned, to set the PAC up on a permanent basis as a political organization. Its major obpectives will be to continue the work of getting out the labor vote at election time and to conduct "educational" campaigns in the interval between elections on matters of interest to labor and the CIO in particular.

The election "thawed" approximately $300,000 in union funds which the PAC froze, when the election campaign started, to conform with the Corrupt Practices Act. This money is now available to maintain the organization.

Financed by Dollar Bills

Campaign expences were paid by dollars collected from individuals.

It was understood that the national CIO convention scheduled to convene in Chicago November 20 will be asked to decide the future structure of the PAC and the fate of its broader-based affiliates, the National Citizens' Political Action Committee.

An intensive campaign to obtain the removal of restrictions on the franchise will be waged by the PAC, it was learned. PAC discovered that its efforts to register union members frequently were hampered by residence requirements an dother restrictions which had the effect of disqualifying blocks of voters.

Poll Tax a Target

The PAC will also continue the CIO's campaign against the poll tax, it is believed.

Meanwhile, AFL President William Green issued a statement hailing the election results as a triumph for "labor." He said the election showed that the American people "have overwhelmingly rejected isolationism."

"It is the best possible augury for the establishment of lasting peace based upon international cooperation," Green said.

An "overwhelmingly large number" of congressional candidates indorsed by the AFL were erelected, Green said.

John Jones

Services for John Jones, 80, one of Rockville's best-known citizens, who died Tuesday night, will be held at 9:30 a. m. today in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Rockville. The pastor, the Rev. J. Gilbert Hann, will officiate and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mr. Jones was a son of the late Nathan and Eleanor Jones and was virtually a life-long resident of Montgomery County. He was unmarried. Surviving are a brother, William Allie Jones, two nieces, Misses Margaret and Eleanor Jones, and a nephew, Clagett Jones, all of Darnestown.

Mr. Jones was at one time clerk to the board of supervisors of elections for Montgomery County and also served for a number of years as a justice of the peace for the county.

Planes Pound Japs in Burma's Ft. White Area

Kandy, Ceylon, Nov. 8 (U.P.)—Japanese troops, pushed out of their strongly defended positions on Kennedy Peak in the Chin Hills of southwest Burma, have stiffened in the Fort White area but are being pounded from the air, a communique announced today.

Fighter-bombers attacked objectives near Kalemyo, 20 miles east of Fort White.

In the Arakan region, West African troops cleared an enemy strong-point north of Paletwa after a successful air strike, while north of Buthidaung a number of enemy troops were killed in a patrol clash.

On the north Burma front, British patrols were in action east and west of the railway south of Mawlu, while Chinese troops continued to patrol along the Taying River toward Bhamo.

(Ernst August Sommer, Transocean correspondent, said in a Berlin broadcast lively fighting has flared up in Burma and that steady Allied air activity there must be considered the prelude to a large scale offensive in the near future.)

Kweilin Assault Intensfied

Chungking, Nov. 8. (U.P.)—Japanese troops launched three violent attacks on encircled Kweilin and appeared to be making some headway in the eastern and western suburbs, the Chinese announced today, while other enemy troops to the south captured Hsiujen and were developing a new thrust toward Liuchow.

Liuchow, site of the last major U. S. Airforce bases in Kwangsi Province, was being threatened by three columns—one along the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway from Kweilin, another from the southeast from Mosun, and still a third from Hsuijen, 45 miles east of Liuchow.

From Hsuijen the enemy continued his westward advance on the Liu River, which runs north and south below the city to a point 16 miles east of Liuchow where it turns sharply westward. The enemy is "being halted," the Chinese said.

(A later Chinese communique recorded by FCC said Chinese forces clared the Burma Road four miles past the Lungling on the Salween Front.)

Organ Pipes Stolen

Evanston, Ill.—Police are seeking the thief who stole 150 pencil-sized pipes from the organ in Cahn Auditorium of Northwestern University. Dr. John W. Beattie, dean of the school of music, said that the organ has 2000 pipes and those stolen were high pitched and will be missed only by those with keen ears for music. Under present conditions, the pipes are irreplaceable.

Wedemeyer Shuns Politics In China Post

Chungking, Nov. 8 (AP).—Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, in his first interview since arrival in Chungking to succeed Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, described the military situation in China as unfavorable "but not irretrievable," and he made it clear that he would not interfere in any way in Chinese politics.

He disclosed that his command of American forces embraced French Indo-China as well as China, with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek as overall supreme Allied commander.

Non-commital on the Stilwell episode, General Wedemeyer scored American criticism of the Chinese, and Chinese criticism of the United States, as hindrances to the conduct of the war.

"Our job," he emphasized, "is to kill Japs." He sidestepped a question as to whether he thought a major continental campaign was necessary to defeat Japan.

On the question of Chinese politics, General Wedemeyer said "after the war the people of China can determine by whom they will be governed." He said he had come to China to serve with the Chinese and to do everything possible to bring the most effective employment of Allied power against Japan.

"An initial survey," he said, "leads me to believe that we should not be pessimistic."

He said Gen. Douglas MacArthur's success in the Philippines had made a very important contribution to the China theater, and that within a fortnight or a month he would be able to operate on a large scale from Leyte and Samar.

Company E of the 142d Infantry during World War 1 was made up almost entirely of Oklahoma Indians.

Roosevelt Stronger, Allies Say, Intervention Stressed by Foe

By the Associated Press

Foreign comment, both enemy and Allied, yesterday treated the reelection of President Roosevelt as a victory for internationalism in the United States.

The British press, anticipating a conference in the near future among Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, said the election results should strengthen Roosevelt's hand in such deliberations.

Dispatches from London said the British "man in the street," diplomat and the press all were relieved at the results, not because they disliked Gov. Thomas E. Dewey but because they knew where Roosevelt stood.

The German Foreign Office quoted in a Berlin broadcast, said the election results showed "a tendancy to depart from isolationist principles and a stronger tendency to interventionism in European affairs. We shall have to take this fact into future considerations."

Japs 'Surprised' at Policy

Tokyo propagandists, in broadcasts recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, declared it made no difference to the Japanese which candidate won and implied surprise that Americans should take time out in the midst of a "decisive war" to select a new president.

Russia, favoring Roosevelt's reelection, greeted the result with elation, the Soviets having been chillychilly toward campaign discussion of the "Communist danger" within America and fearful that a change of presidents would have temporarily weakened Allied cooperation.

Other reactions in summary:

France: Assembly members interpreted the outcome as a guarantee of American participation in a world peace organization.

Italy: Rome press greeted the election as indorsement of the President's international policies.

China: Chungking was described as happy at Roosevelt's success.

Victory Generally Greeted

Sweden: The once pro-German paper Aftonbladet, said Roosevelt's victory would be "greeted with the greatest satisfaction throughout the world."

Greece: Curtailed Athens papers gave much of their space to the election, with admiring comments on the President.

Brazil: Most papers described the result as a triumph for maintenance of American internationalism.

Cuba: Papers in Havana said "We consider Roosevelt's triumph as our very own."

Bermuda: General satisfaction was expressed by this British colony.

U. S. troops in Italy: Interviews or quotations forbidden, but the Stras and Stripes banner-llend the results.

U. S. troops on the Western Front: Relaxation of previous strict prohibition against questioning troops on the election brought generally favorable comment on Roosevelt's victory although front-line troops still showed no great interest.

British Second Army in Holland: Tremendous British and Dutch interest displayed but American troops on that front were described as primarily interested in the outcome of various bets.

Banker Is Brakeman

Chicago (U.P.)—Russell L. Hoak has two jobs. From Mondays through Fridays he is vice president of the First National Bank of Elkhart, Ind. Over the weekends he works as a brakeman on the New York Central freight run from Elkhart to Chicago. Hoak took the latter job after the railroad had appealed for part-time workmen.

Charter Plan In Montgomery Is Defeated

Montgomery County citizens by a vote of 14,471 to 13,270 apparently rejected a charter form of government to replace the present county commissioner plan in yesterday's referendum.

Defeat of the charter cannot be considered final, however, until the soldier vote of approximately 2600 is counted. The county board of election supervisors said they expect to count the soldier vote Friday.

Anticharter leaders expressed confidence the soldier vote would not alter the result. Charter advocates, conceding defeat, indicated another attempt would be made to bring the charter proposal before the voters.

A charter supporter charged that the county Democratic organization "engineed a deal" with Republicans in which the former had agreed not to support President Roosevelt in return for Republican opposition to the charter. The President lost the county, 14,310 to 19,154.

Col. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, termed the charge "absolutely false." He said the vote for Roosevelt represented a reduction of only 879 votes from his 1940 total.

Under the charter plan, a council would be elected on a nonpartisan ballot and it would select a manager to direct county affairs.

Sends Back Prison Garb

Columbia, S. C. (U.P.)—Columbia city police were seeking a man wh omight be dubbed "Most Considerate Jail Breaker of 1944"—an escapee from the city chaingang who spent 38 cents to express his prison garb back to the proper authorities.

Baseball Get-Together Ends Vandalism

Cleveland (U.P.)—A recent wave of vandalism on Cleveland's west side prompted Councilman Paul T. Betley to propose formation of vigilantes, "armed with clubs and guns if necessary" to combat the evil.

But a few days later Bently reconsidered and decided to use another method. He invited "neighborhood toughs" to play a game of baseball with the west side businessmen one evening.

The game ended in a 27 to 12 trouncing for the businessmen and later both teams indulged in an assault on soft drinks and sandwiches.

P.S.: The vandalism ceased.

In Justice to Her Devoted Husband, Should Loving Wife Insist on Divorcing Him, Since They Want Children and She Can't Have Them?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 33. My husband is 29. We have been married for five years and have been very happy, except that our great desire for children has been denied. When my husband first went overseas, 15 months ago, we were expecting a child. But a short time later, our baby girl was born prematurely and lived only a few hours. My condition was such that my obstetrician prescribed an emergency operation, which would mean no more children for me. My reaction was so rebellious that I was taken to the operating room without my knowledge; and the operation was performed.

Even though my husband is now home from numerous missions in the Pacific, I am a nervous wreck. Doctors I have consulted tell me I should adopt a child. That is their best suggestion. But here is my problem: Although my husband says he perfectly understands and still loves me dearly, and is eager to adopt a baby, I cannot overcome the feeling that he must hate me. I feel greatly obligated to him and I love him too much to hurt him in any way. Would it be right to ask him to let me give him his freedom, so that he may find a woman who can give him children?

K. L.

Wife Cooking Up Melodrama

DEAR K. L.: Millions of women have been fatefully denied their soul's sincere desire to have children of their own,—but you are among the few who collapse into a rug-chewing frame of mind about it. Your doctors have given you good advice: to adopt a child. So why don't you take it?—and by putting your nose to the grindstone of routine child care, ease the bursting pressure of emotional frustration which, combined with your present idleness, is beginning to make you act like crazy?

You are going far afield to borrow trouble, in dreaming up the melodramatic denouement of foisting divorce on your husband, when that poor worried fellow has never for a moment signified that he wants it. I imagine the loss of the baby, and the prospect of never begetting children of his own, doesn't distress him half so much as your neurotic performance of recent months.

Man's Distress Is Sympathetic

REMEMBER THIS: His is a man's mind and different from yours, and I think we may truthfully say of the normal man that his fundamental reaction to the possibility of parenthood is essentially impersonal,—until his paternity has become an established fact. Personal consolation is the great experience he seeks in matehood; and if children come, he accepts them as a more or less desirable by-product of self-realization; but they are never to him the be-all and end-all of existence that they are deemed by some women, who happen to be endowed with an overpowering yen for motherhood.

I surmise this of your husband: Because he loves you dearly, he is sympathetically attuned to your hopes and desires, and inclined to go along wholeheartedly with your profound yearning to acquire children. And in giving the impression that children are as important to his happiness as to yours, he is really signifying sincerely that he wants whatever will make you happy. By the same token, he participates in your present anguish because he is so close to you in spirit, so sensitively devoted, that he suffers with and for you,—and not because his soul cries out inconsolably for children of his own begetting. I believe he is telling the simple truth when he says he would gladly settle for an adopted child,—if that is the recipe to dry your tears.

THE POWDER BLENDERS

"What's become of Eve Flitt? I haven't seen her for ages."

"Eve's not going out now."

"What! A blessed event?"

"No, her powder blender's joined the Wacs, and she can't find anyone who can blend just the right shade. She says she simply can't face her friends."

"That's all nonsense. I blend my own. Of course it's a little trouble—I had to give up my Red Cross group—since I simply have to have different shades for morning, afternoon and night, fall, winter, spring and summer, but at least I've learned to be independent. I think that's so important for women in wartime."

"Oh, Eve never could blend hers. She always has to have just the right dash of lavender——"

"I use a dash of paprika. And I always weigh it on my powder scales with the windows shut. If even a flake blows off the proportions are upset."

"My blender uses a pinch of magenta, chartruse and tangerine for me. I never could do it. You have to have a feeling for that sort of thing."

"Barbara Zipp's been having a lot more time since she's been buying her powder boxed——"

"I'd never buy my powder boxed!"

"But she buys this new noncoloring powder——"

"I'd think she'd look like a ghost."

"And uses it over a colored makeup base. Why don't you tell Eve about it. All she'd have to do would be to find the right makeup base——"

"Yes, with a dash of lavender."

THE LIPSTICK SET

"How do you like your new hat?"

"I'll never be able to wear it. I can't find the right shade of lipstick. You see it's this new Desert Rose."

"Say, there's a lipstick called Sheik's Delight that ought to be just the thing."

"I've tried it. It's not subtle enough."

"Dot Close had on one the other day called Passionate Pink——"

"That's a little too genteel. I want something to suggest emotion held in leash."

"Clara Piffle was telling me she can't find anything to go with her new anthracite blue dress."

"That new Kindling Ember should be just the shade."

"But that doesn't go with her skin."

"If she's that old-fashioned she'll never find anything."

THE CREAM CLIQUE

"Marcia Burlap's looking better lately. I wonder if Stu's been behaving himself."

"I heard it was that new Violet Vitamin cream."

"No! Where can you get it?"

"It's terribly expensive—$10 for a tiny jar, and there are half a dozen other things that go with it. But after one night you've an entirely new skin the next morning."

"I'm going to get some just as soon as I can save the money out of the groceries."

"I'd like to know what Sandra Swagg uses on her throat. You know she couldn't have that good a throat naturally."

"I understand she's a close friend of one of Geraldine Clamm's head women. That's why her skin's so good."

"Nell Nitter ought to do something about her skin."

"What can you expect? She uses soap and water all the time!"

"She better watch out—I mean about Art."

"I know. I've heard a few things already. Say, I see Madge Stepp is here. I thought she'd gone to Reno."

"She changed her mind. Travel's so difficult she simply can't carry all her creams on the train. She's putting off her divorce until after the war."

Bread Pudding Can Be Delicious; Add Fruit for a Special Treat

If you are one of those skeptics who thinks a dish cannot be both nutritious and delicious, then you've either forgotten about a flavorsome bread pudding or you're one of the unfortunates who has never eaten the dish at its best. Bread pudding need not be the sodden mess that some persons make.

Not only can a well-designed bread pudding be delicious but it is a way to use stale bread since into every breadbox some unwanted bread must fall. These orphan bread slices, when combined with milk, eggs, nuts, raisins, figs, apples and even a celestial meringue, make a dessert that will be requested many times.

If you are clever about jazzing up the sauce served on the pudding you will have an extra sales point in your culinary repertoire. Hard, foamy, and fruit sauces elevate puddings to a new level. Or use a layer of stewed fruit between the pudding and a perky meringue. This type of pudding will be best served with cream. The flavor of the pudding may also be varied by adding dates, bananas, or orange marmalade.

The following recipe is one using raisins and topped with a meringue:

BREAD PUDDING WITH MERINGUE

Cut bread into slices and trim away the crusts. Soak for 15 minutes 3½ cups stale, diced bread in 3 cups warm milk. Add ¼ teaspoon salt. Combine and beat well, 3 egg yolks with ½ cup sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla. One-half teaspoon nutmeg may be added if desired. Add either ¼ cup raisins or nut meats. Pour these ingredients over the soaked bread. Stir lightly with a fork until well blended. Place in a baking dish set in a pan of hot water in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 45 minutes. Cool the pudding. Cover with a meringue made with 3 egg whites, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Bake the pudding in a slow oven, 300 degrees, until the meringue is set—about 15 minutes. Serve hot with a sauce or cream. Makes 6 servings.

GOOD TOP-OFF for dinner is a bread pudding that has distinctive flavor. This is one way to use up left-over bread into a nutritious, appealing dessert.

Town Talk—

Restoration Purpose: Mrs. Truxtun Beale's Decatur House 'Insured' Against Wreckers

By Carolyn Bell

THAT face-lifting Decatur House has just gone through was for more than beauty's sake. It means that Mrs. Truxtun Beale, owner of the historic home on Jackson pl., may have won her battle with the State Department. I say may, for it seems there are two schools of thought in the State Department—those who would be "off with the old and on with the new" and vice versa.

Elegant, pencil-slim Mrs. Beale would like nothing better than to have the home made into a permanent residence for the Secretary of State. So quite naturally she threw up her hands in horror when it was rumored that the Government might buy the entire block for the State Department—and tear down every building on it. Mrs. Beale got to work, and with the help of one Thomas Waterman (who helped restore Williamsburg) they have restored the rather grim-looking old place to its true colonial beauty.

They dug up the original plans of Benjamin Latrobe, the architect Commodore Stephen Decatur commissioned to build the house, and have put the house back into its original shape. The Victorian door has been replaced; balconies have come down. They cleaned the paint off the H st. side and have put a few bits of paint here and there. In short, the old place sparkles with new life.

Now Mrs. Beale thinks Uncle Sam won't "dare lay a finger on it"—but instead will buy it and put it to good use. If and when it becomes Government property, Mrs. Beale will move out Massachusetts ave. way to a little spot overlooking the city—"for after all I'm a country girl at heart," she added.

"IT'S about time for you to bring up my jazz collection again," chided Ahmet Ertegun at a recent party. The magnificent collection of records owned by the two sons of the Turkish Ambassador always have been a source of great delight for th town's younger set. But "jam sessions" in the great stone embassy are ruled out for the duration by Pappa Ertegun. So the boys, and their jitterbug-loving friends, have to be content with getting their music in New York night clubs or local auditoriums.

At present, Nesuhi, Ahmet's brother, is in Hollywood. He and Turhan Bey (the new movie find who discarded his traditional roles with Marie Montez to play opposite Katharine Hepburn in "Dragon Seed") are great friends. The two Turkish boys are having a great time getting acquainted with Hollywood.

NAVY Dilemma: When Secretary of State Hull was admitted to the Navy Hospital recently, great preparations were made for his arrival. A captain was moved out of the "best room in the house" and a crew of Navy corpsmen went to work. In no time at all they had the room spotless and brass shone in the best Navy tradition. If it hadn't have been for a rainstorm things would have gone along quite smoothly. But shortly after the Secretary was ensconced in his bed he was a bit shocked to discover that not only was the roof leaking, but the water was landing on his chest! Needless to add the brass hats were a bit embarrassed.

TOLL House Tales: The attractive house owned by the Tolls out Connecticut ave. way was the scene of a recent party. The roomy old house has been leased by Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Al Dunham and Maj. and Mrs. Ed Huddelson. Ed is in Hawaii for the War Department, but his blonde wife, Demi, and their son remain here.

It was a beer party and gay in the manner of those once-famous bachelor establishments, Street and Hockley. Most of the guests gathered in the bar downstairs. Lieut. Col. Ed Dulaney did a few of his famous imitations, while his wife, Denise, discussed her latest work at Corcoran Art Gallery.

Laurie Shaughnessy led the singing as only an Irishman can. Lieut. and Mrs. Hedley Donovan (who had been hosts at cocktails earlier) were there. Maj. and Mrs. Claude Pierce chatted with John McKenna, back from Merchant Marine adventures, and the two Toll boys, Oliver and Willkie, discussed their recent trip to Nicaragua.

Mrs. Stanley L. Richter has as her guest Mrs. Orin S. Mitcham, who makes her home at the Beekman in New York.

Miss Helen C. Walker of Washington is spending several days in New York, stopping at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

Capt. and Mrs. Walter Nordlinger have arrived here from Virginia Beach and are the guests of Captain Nordlinger's mother, Mrs. Estelle Nordliner, at Woodley Park Towers.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Kaufman have as their guest her sister, Mrs. L. R. Newman, New Orleans.

McLaughlins On Honeymoon

Shrine of the Sacred Heart was the scene of a wedding Monday at noon when Miss Anne A. McLaughlin, daughter of Mrs. William H. McLaughlin, Washington, and the late Mr. McLaughlin, became the bride of Donald F. Willey, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Addison H. Willey, Bay Ridge, Md. The Rev. John Brown, uncle of the bride, and pastor of Sacred Heart Church, Pinehurst, N. C., officiated at the ceremony and nuptial mass.

Miss Deide Simmons was maid of honor and Pvt. John Garrett was best man. Bridegroom attended Fishburn Military Academy, Waynesboro, Va., before entering the Navy four years ago.

Bride is employed at Selective Service headquarters. A reception and wedding breakfast followed at the Hamilton Hotel, after the couple left for a short wedding trip.

Among His Souvenirs

New York, Nov. 8.

A LETTER from Pfc. Steve Hopkins, written before he left for the Marshall Islands, where he lost his life. The letter referred to a night- club tour we had made shortly before the 18-year-old Hopkins enlisted in the Marine Corps . . . Dorothy Parker was with us that night, and watched the boy, pretending to be a grown-up, order Scotch and soda, and grimace at the first sip. She knew just what to do. She quickly sipped from her own glass and said: "This is terrible Scotch. I won't drink it." . . . Young Hopkins, relieved, pushed his drink away and said: "You're right. I won't drink it either."

LEONARD LYONS

A POEM composed by William Saroyan, entitled "Speed, Written for Orson Welles, and $300." Welles then was broadcasting for an aviation sponsor and needed a three-minute bit, quickly. "I need someone like Saroyan, who can write it quickly," said Orson. . . . I phoned Saroyan, introduced Welles to him, and they talked about the script. "I'll meet you in an hour, at Toots Shor's," said Saroyan . . . "To discuss this?" asked Welles . . . "No, I'll have it all finished by then," Saroyan promised . . . We went to the restaurant and waited. Saroyan was five minutes late in arriving. . . . "Sorry I'm a bit late," Saroyan apologized, delivering the finished script. "But I also had to write a song.

A BILL for dentistry which involved 16 sessions in one month, each session averaging eight hours. When the final session — lasting 14 hours — was over, Dr. A. B. Weinstein assured me that my teeth were in perfect condition and that I probably never would need any more dental work for the rest of my life. "But don't get into any fights," he cautioned me. "I'd hate to see my work ruined" . . . The very next day, a 190-pound six-footer came to my office with the avowed intention of punching me right in the mouth, because of an item I had written about him . . . And the husky gentleman who made this threat of assault was the district attorney of New York.

A NOTE from Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism, thanking me for an afternoon of discussion with the entire student body. Mr. Lyons is the know-it-all columnist," was the way I was introduced to the class, "who had to learn from Mr. Winchell's column this very morning that his wife is going to have a baby."

AN ASH TRAY from a submarine, sent to me from Panama, by its skipper who is one of the most-decorated men in the Navy. His was the first sub to operate in the waters off Japan. . . . During his visit to New York he told of a rare brand of gin which he had learned to like in the Dutch East Indies. He insisted that this now was unobtainable. I managed to get him a bottle. "I won't open it until I sink a Jap ship," he said. "I'll take one drink per ship." From time to time, whenever the sub reaches a port, I get a letter from him. "Drank two toasts to you," was the first report. "Had three drinks from your bottle," was the second. "Had two more drinks," was the third. "Hope to finish the bottle before we return."

A PIN given to the passengers on the Normandie, in commemoration of its 100th crossing . . . At the charity dance, on the third night out, the vessel lurched, and one haughty couple collided with my wife and her dance partner. The haughty lady snarled at my wife and her partner: "People who can't rumba shouldn't be allowed on the dance-floor" . . . We've seen the haughty lady many times since then, but avoided introductions . . . And we still see my wife's dance partner of that evening aboard the Normandie, Mr. Arthur Murray.

SHEET MUSIC I collected at a dinner party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Gershwin in Hollywooo. There were other songwriters present—Harold Arlen, Mack Gordon, Harold Rome—all with their wives Each of the songwriters sang some of the hits each had written. In every case, each forgot part of the lyrics. And each time their respective wives would prompt them.

A CANCELED RAILROAD TICKET from London to Stratford-on-Avon, where we were going to see a Shakespeare festival. It was the first and only time in our lives that we ever missed catching a train. We had to take the next train out, and arrived at Stratford-on-Avon to learn that we were too late for the festival, but that in the same theater we now could see a Ritz Brothers' movie.

A NOTE which was delivered to me at the Stork Club while I was sitting with Brig. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler. The note, sent by Sergt. Marion Hargrove, who was sitting at another table, read: "Remember, the buck-sergeant is the backbone of the American Army" . . . I showed it to the general, who then nodded to Sergeant Hargrove and agreed "You're absolutely right."

AN ADDRESS of a 6-year-old classmate of my elder son, George. He was enamored of this girl and asked me to give him money to buy a card he wished to send her. "Don't write it for me," said George. "I'll tell you what I want to write, and you just tell me how to spell the words." . . . He printed, carefully: "Dear Carmen: Please come to my house Thursday afternoon." . . . On Thursday I asked him: "Is Carmen coming?" . . . "No," he said. . . . "Didn't you give her the card in school?" I asked. . . . "Yes, I did, pop," said George. . . . "Did she open the envelope?" I asked. . . He nodded. . . . . "Did she look at the card?" I asked. . . . He nodded. . . . "Then why isn't she coming?" I asked. . . . "Because," George sighed, "she can't read yet."

'The Master Race' Has Prophetic Word to Say On Screen at Keith's

"THE MASTER RACE," opening this morning on the screen at RKO-Keith's Theater is a forward-looking and significant film that addresses itself to the problem recently propounded by the March of Time in its "What to Do With Germany."

It epitomizes Nazi Germany in the single character of a certain Colonel Von Beck, whose shrewd plans for the future might well express the purpose of Hitlerism in defeat.

The picture, to make its premise tenable, presupposes the unconditional surrender of naziism under the overwhelming power of Allied force. It goes on, then, to outline a possible—in fact, probable—course that might very well be pursued, in the light of past history, by the Nazi high command in its insatiable ambition to make good the title of the picture.

As the film initiates its action, Col. Von Beck has the good judgment to conclude that, in so far as this conflict is concerned, the jig is up for his side. So he admonishes his staff to disperse itself as best it may with always the sole purpose in mind of keeping alive against the launching of a third world war.

Clever Masquerade

Col. Von Beck, it is made clear, is an officer not above practicing what he preaches. He repairs himself immediately to the small, liberated Belgian town, in which he has contacts that may serve his purpose well, if properly utilized.

Masquerading as an industrialist of some stature, Von Beck proceeds to the intricate task of converting the confused thought of the natives to the future glory of the Reich. Pitted against him is Maj. Phil Carson of the United States Army, intrusted with the responsibility of bringing the populace within the scope of a nonaggressive and humanitarian program that has their best interests at heart.

It is a pretty battle that is waged from then on.

It is a battle that encompasses most of the heinous social concepts of the Nazis, all of their treachery and double-dealing and a large measure of their utter brutality and ruthlessness.

The film story contrived by Director Herbert J. Biberman, Anne Froelick and Rowland Leigh is no idyllic thing, dedicated to the gentler impulses of the human race. It is a vivid, stirring and deeply moving examination of humanity versus barbarism. Needless to say in which way the scales are tipped.

But those scales are tipped in the expected direction only after a tense, thrilling and poignant depiction on the screen of the sinister influence Nazism may be expected to play in the lives of untold thousands who lack the perception to discern their own best interests.

Packs a Punch

I would not give the impression by all this that "The Master Race" belongs on the level of the "documentary" or "propaganda" film. It is neither. What it is is an extraordinarily exciting melodrama that has in it most of the elements that may be relied upon to engage a wide public interest — surprise, suspense and a strange quality of warmth not usually associated with as grim and stark an exploration of human suffering as is made one of the picture's most telling virtues.

It is a pretty involved plot to attempt to summarize in a sentence or two. The complications, however, are such as to give a lift to our side in the war, without minimizing the desperate determination of enemy forces that will survive long after any armistice in the present struggle is signed. The easiest way to solve the serious involvements of the principals in the action is to scrutinize and appraise them for yourself. It will be an interesting and profitable experience.

Those principals, by the by, are played with uncommon skill by George Coulouris, in the role of Von Beck; Stanley Ridges, as Maj. Carson and a long list of others who contribute generously to the film's even balance and grip on both the emotions and the more violent of the passions.

Impeccably Cast

The presence of Mr. Coulouris in the pivotal role of all that goes on is an earnest of the integrity of the whole thing. There is no great difference—except possibly in the matter of elaboration—between his present assignment and his role of the Nazi in Lillian Hellman's "Watch on the Rhine." If you are familiar with the superlative excellence of that portrayal, you are abreast of the superiority of his present.

Stanley Ridges, former leading man of Stephen E. Cochran's National Theater Players, is a hard-boiled, compassionate and wholly competent Major Carson, and a particularly sympathetic characterization is offered by Osa Massen in the role of the simple villager caught in the mesh of Nazi tyranny. Carl Esmond, as the Russian patriot; Nancy Gates, and Morris Carnovsky are foremost among those who add further force to the play that Coauthor Biberman has directed with such skill—with especial emphasis on the precocity of Ghislaine Perreau, one of the most appealing of the baby actresses.

Scenery Is Beautiful!

Hollywood, Calif., Nov. 8.—Did David Selznick, William Goetz and Ed Raftery go all the way to Santa Barbara just to look at the scenery?

RUTH HUSSEY

I reported some time ago that they'd get together for a merger to take over United Artists. This sounds like that merger. It may take a couple of months to smooth everything out and settle a couple of lawsuits with Charles Chaplin, but eventually Selznick, Goetz, and Raftery will be under one banner. And it can't happen too soon for Goetz . . . Ruth Hussey does "Bedside Manner" for Andrew Stone . . . Alexander Korda arrives in New York the end of November. Then we'll see what we shall see . . . Wonder why Judy Garland is so upset about Lucille Bremer's star-billing in "Ziegfield Follies"? Sure, Lucille is surrounded by lots of top stars—she's good, too. But it will be a long time before anybody equals Judy's performance and quality in "Meet Me in St. Louis." . . . Gasoline Alley, comic strip, may see the screen via radio.

In Filmy Things

It's Adele Jergens in "A Thousand and One Nights" and not Maria Montez, as someone else reported. I'm told Adele looks mighty tasty in those diaphanous things. . . . Allyn Joslyn was all set to play Captain Purvis in "A Bell for Adano" but he wrenched his back and will be laid up. Young Frank Dunne is set to do it. He's the son of James Dunne of the Abbey Players. . . . It could only happen here. Our No. 1 screen gangster, Edward G. Robinson, has turned Wisconsin farmer to play the father of Margaret O'Brien in "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes." . . . No one can deny Sylvia Sydney's a swell actress. She's proving it daily with James Cagney in "Blood on the Sun." . . . I hope Harry Cohn signs Fanny Ward for a picture. I think she'd surprise with the number of fans and friends who'd like to see her again.

Why Be Afraid

I ran an item the other day about doing a picture about the Jews. It seems that the same boys who did "Humoresque" and "The Jazz Singer" are now afraid to put a Jewish story on the screen. Paramount owns one of the greatest stories ever written. It's "Yonder Lies Jericho," and it could be the "Going My Way" of the Jewish religion. It's about a human being who happens to be a Jew, who came to this country at the turn of the century, went to Oklahoma, opened a store there, and thru that character you get everything that happens in that community. . . . James McHugh has a friend who planted an Australian victory garden. Everything stayed down under.

Plushy Era Lives Again

Greer Garson is superb as old Mrs. Parkington. The picture will clean up. Performances I particularly went for were those by Cecil Kellaway, Agnes Moorehead, Selena Royle and Walter Pidgeon. But the best of the lot was Gladys Cooper. . . . Edward Sutherland and Hal Wallis are huddling over the "Life of Wilson Mizner." 'Twould make a fabulous picture. . . . Johnston, no longer under contract to Paramount, can do many things well, but modesty is not his charm. John introduced "Black Magic" in "Star Spangled Rhythm." Bing Crosby also sang a ditty in that, but Johnny knew his song was good. Commiserating with Bing, he said, "Sorry, but they gave me that song to sing." Said Bing, "You did it mighty well, too, but don't worry about me, I do pretty well on the radio."

Still a Free Country

Bill and Frank, who own that market which I wrote up the other day because they were campaigning for Dewey, had their Dewey-Bricker banner pulled down and all their pictures swiped. But has it stopped the boys? Huh-uh. They just talk louder and longer. . . . George Jessel, producing "Dolly Sisters," will act in it, too. If you can keep Jessel from acting, you're a better man than either Zanuck or Schenck. . . . Monty Banks, Gracie Field's husband, gets another acting job in "A Bell for Adano."

Charter Lost

Defeat of the proposed Montgomery County charter will be a source of keen regret to many of our neighbors across the Maryland line. Two years ago the people indicated their desire for modernization of their county government by a substantial majority. On Tuesday the charterites rolled up a still larger vote, but not enough to overcome the formidable opposition from the political machine entrenched at Rockville. It is highly improbable that the counting of soldier ballots will change the lead of more than a thousand votes for the "antis."

The defeat of the charter appears to be linked with the surprising fact that Governor Dewey carried Montgomery County by nearly 5000 votes. Normally the county is Democratic. This year, however, the Democratic organization did little work for the national ticket. Most of its efforts and its funds were directed against the nonpartisan charter movement. The returns also tend to sustain the charge that some Republican leaders traded votes against the charter for votes in favor of Governor Dewey. There had been various rumors before the election to the effect that such trades were in the making. If some Republican leaders did stoop to that sort of deal, they must shoulder the chief responsibility for depriving the county of progressive home rule.

We do not imagine, however, that the charter movement is finished. As Allen H. Gardner, president of the charter committee, has pointed out, many reforms of this sort have been lost in the first try. Good government results only from continuous, determined effort on the part of public-spirited citizens to attain it. We hope that the charter committee will charge this narrow defeat up to experience and persist in its efforts to modernize the Montgomery County government. In our opinion the strength of the movement is almost certain to grow as the county's rapid development enhances the demand for home rule and more efficient administration of county affairs.

Birthday For UNRRA

Just a year ago today the representatives of 44 nations signed an agreement establishing the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Its purpose—to bind up the world's wounds—is a singularly appropriate one with which to inaugurate the cooperative efforts of the United Nations in the postwar era. For the accomplishment of this purpose is basic to everything else we hope for. The director general of UNRRA, Herbert H. Lehman, made the point in these words at the first meeting of the agency: "Let us recognize frankly that freedom from gripping want is a basic component of any enduring peace and that if the world is to have any hope of lasting peace and a stable economy we must all cooperate wholeheartedly to the end that the liberated peoples are restored as rapidly as possible to a self-sustaining basis."

During the first year of its existence, UNRRA has had scant opportunity to embark on its real work of resuscitation in the liberated countries. But the opportunity is now at hand and should broaden rapidly as the Allied armies sweep the Nazis out of all the lands they once occupied. UNRRA has by no means been idle during this past year. It has been busily laying the groundwork indispensable to its future operations. The needs of liberated areas have been carefully estimated. Supplying nations have been requested to procure such necessary goods as may be in surplus supply and to contract for goods, such as textiles, which require long periods for production. There is certain to be urgent need at the outset for food, medical supplies and agricultural materials. Communication and transportation systems will have to be set going again. Power plants, water and sewerage systems will have to be repaired. The tools and materials to do these jobs cannot be improvised. UNRRA has wisely been getting them ready for the day when they can be put to use.

Perhaps the greatest task to be faced by UNRRA is the repatriation of the 20 million human beings uprooted and moved from their homes by the enemy. Already the agency is taking care of some 50,000 persons in six refugee camps established in the Middle East—awaiting the time when they can be returned to their homelands. Millions of others will have to be fed, clothed and sheltered until they can go home and commence life anew. We who have been spared such suffering cannot turn our backs upon them. UNRRA, as the agent of our collective will to help, is to be congratulated on the beginning it has made. We wish it a most successful future.

Dewey In Retrospect

It is being said that Governor Dewey owes his defeat to the fact that he conducted his campaign as a prosecuting attorney. The explanation is not very satisfying. To be sure, the Republican nominee put "Dr." New Deal in the dock, and arraigned it with the coldness and expertness of a criminal lawyer. Moreover, he tried to incriminate the prisoner out of his own mouth by tearing out of context sundry observations of his prominent backers. But Mr. Dewey went down to defeat for causes other than the exhibition of the tactics and tricks of the prosecuting attorney. He lost this election because in the minds of the electorate he did not come to grips with the great issues of war and peace. These were the dominant issues in the minds of the electorate, and so great was their hold that pundits of both party affiliations now appear to think that Mr. Willkie could have beaten Mr. Roosevelt.

It did not dawn upon Mr. Dewey till the campaign was well advanced that these were the issues which engrossed the people. Mr. Roosevelt knew better. After he had needled Mr. Dewey with his Teamsters' speech, in the hope that the spectacle of a fight would bring out the vote, the President stole the ball on the issue of foreign policy, and never lost it. The feeling appeared to develop among the voters that in this field Mr. Dewey had neither expertness nor conviction. As to expertness, no demonstration was required, of course, to prove that Mr. Dewey isn't as versed in these matters as Mr. Roosevelt. He hadn't had the same training. He lacked access to the same information. Without this background Mr. Dewey couldn't build up a case, except by citing incomplete documents, to prove that between wars Mr. Roosevelt had followed quite as much as he had led. It was thus left to Representative Judd to make the best presentation of this case of any Republican orator.

That Mr. Dewey lacks conviction on the issues of war and peace is not as easily demonstrable. To be sure, he came late by his present stand on international policy, but so did the generality of Americans, and we don't think Mr. Dewey's record acted as a blight on his pledges. It was the absence of passion as well as power in his expositions that failed to carry his conviction. To be sure, Mr. Dewey cannot speak with the fervor that was expected of him. His oratory has precision and elocutionary skill, but it has no warmth. Mr. Willkie in his latter days had it, and would have appealed to the heart as well as the head, if he had been nominated.

In this connection Mr. Dewey's failure to cold shoulder the extremists, except for Mr. Fish, increased the feeling that he was insincere. That was unfair. Mr. Roosevelt himself clings to groups, from the city machines to Southern diehards, who have no interest at all in either his foreign policy or his social reforms. And, if one wonders why Mr. Dewey didn't shake off the isolationist fringe, one should wonder why Mr. Roosevelt went to so much trouble in trying to nurse back into his fold Senator Walsh, as isolationist as any in the Republican camp, who was left peeved and sulking after Senator Truman's good-humored jibe in Boston. The trouble in Mr. Dewey's case is that since 1920, when it turned its back on an old tradition of collaboration with the world, the Republican Party has got its coloration from the isolationists.

One thing must now be crystal clear to the Republican Party. It must recognize in its leadership and in its opposition that this country is living in "one world" and will never go back to a storm cellar. There can be no storm cellar in a day when war can break out with the discharge over all the intervening spaces of this globe of radio-controlled missiles and rocket bombs. Men's minds in this country have come abreast to the facts of our physical existence. They are determined to control events, not to allow events to control them. Let the GOP testify to these facts by the reorganization that Wendell Willkie insisted upon. Opposition we need in the world of tomorrow, as this country shoulders its responsibility for the world that is struggling to be born, and the Republican Party will find plenty of material for opposition in the means of expressing that responsibility. But the Pied Pipers who would lead the Nation away from that responsibility—these men have been repudiated by the people, and the revitalization which Governor Dewey said yesterday had come to the GOP as a result of this election will not come till the GOP has followed suit.

Public Loss

In recent years the Department of Labor has suffered a steady loss of prestige owing to the President's confirmed habit of shifting to other agencies activities of a permanent as well as an emergency character connected with labor problems and labor relationships. It is therefore a tribute to the ability and energy with which John R. Steelman has served as director of the Conciliation Service that he is leaving office with his reputation actually enhanced. His record is not unblemished, to be sure. When Mr. Steelman temporarily laid down his duties as conciliator to serve on a three-man board of arbitration appointed to settle the 1941 coal dispute, he joined John L. Lewis and cast the deciding vote for a compulsory closed shop. This action is the more difficult to explain or defend since he was appointed after the President had backed the refusal of the National Defense Mediation Board to force the union shop upon a small minority of employes of captive coal mines.

As a conciliator Mr. Steelman has, however, proved his worth. It is extremely difficult to find men possessed of the first-hand knowledge and the temperamental qualities required to act as peacemaker in labor disputes. In that role Mr. Steelman and his colleagues have been notably successful. Since their efforts have been concentrated increasingly on the prevention of strikes and lockouts, the public at large has little idea of the scope and importance of the work that is being done. In 1944, for example, the Conciliation Service handled about 25,000 cases involving 12 million workmen, but only 11 per cent of these were strike cases. This kind of negative service has paid enormous dividends to the Nation in the form of improved industrial relations. In the coming years of painful readjustment to peacetime conditions there is going to be especial need for expert handling of employer-employe relationships by the Conciliation Service. We sincerely regret that Mr. Steelman's practiced hand will not be in control of negotiations.

New Congress

All the country will be relieved to know that the Administration's victory in Tuesday's election did not end at the White House. The Democratic Party will also remain in control of both houses of Congress. Its majority in the Senate was never believed to be in danger, and the returns now leave no question whatever that Majority Leader Barkley, himself reelected by a large vote, will again command a substantial margin of strength over the Republicans in the Senate. The numerous Republican gains in the House two years ago and the 1944 polls indicating a close presidential race led many observers, including ourselves, to believe that the next House would probably be Republican, no matter what else happened. However, the strength that President Roosevelt developed in several of the big States has carried a substantial number of Democratic Congressmen to victory along with him. While many House contests are still in doubt, it now appears that the Democrats will have a comfortable majority there, at least so far as numbers are concerned.

Responsibility for guidance of our national policy in the next four years thus falls quite definitely on Democratic leadership. The Nation has been spared a division in command on the civilian front at a critical time. While there are no substantial differences between Republicans and Democrats in their determination to get on with the war, this potential unity of leadership is a fact of great importance for which the electorate is entitled to congratulate itself.

It is not to be assumed, of course, that every Administration proposal will experience clear sailing. Much of the opposition to Rooseveltian measures in the present session of Congress has come from the members of the Democratic Party—sometimes from the Democratic leadership in Congress. We may expect that opposition to stiffen in many instances, especially when the tension of wartime is relaxed, as it is likely to be before another election takes place. A Congress of any political complexion is likely to be more watchful of a fourth-term President than it would be of a newcomer to the White House. That is reasonable and proper. At the same time it is imperative that the Administration in power have the means of making its program effective both during the remainder of the war and in the vital postwar period.

The elimination of various extremists and isolationists suggests also that Congress may be less obstructionist than it has sometimes been in the past. Here is a special inducement to the President to improve his relationship with the Nation's chief policy-making body. Their relations in the past have often degenerated to a very sorry status. If that happens again in the reconstruction and reconversion era, the entire country will suffer for want of positive direction. It is to the interest of the President, the Congress and the public alike to prevent repetition of past experience in this sphere.

To sum up, the appearance of united leadership has been attained at the polls, but actual teamwork in the shaping of policies and carrying them out is yet to be developed. The public has given the President another great opportunity to make the American system work in the cooperative spirit that the founding fathers infused into it. His response to this challenge may well furnish the key to his fourth Administration.

Sancta Simplicitas

Well, if Governor Dewey wasn't elected yesterday, it was certainly no fault of the Russian newspaper Izvestia. Izvestia insinuated that the Republican leaders were plotting a fake attempt on the life of Mr. Dewey "at the very last moment before election with the purpose of leaving no time for denial or investigation." It is fairly obvious that the author of the Izvestia article envisaged an American national election as something on the order of a revolutionary putsch heralded by some tour de force of propaganda. Indeed, he compares the supposed Republican conspiracy to the notorious Reichstag fire of 1933. Doubtless he was misled by some of our campaign rhetoric, which persuaded him that the United States is in much the same state of revolutionary combustibility as was Russia in 1917 or Germany in 1933.

We are led to wonder whether a good deal of the supposed "inscrutability" of Russian policy isn't as much as anything a matter of misconception or downright ignorance. It is probably true that we Americans have very distorted notions of what Russia is like, but it also seems true that the Russians, or at least some of them, have very fantastic notions of what America is like.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Hard Road Ahead

AS I WRITE this in the early morning hours after one of the most fateful elections in all our history, it appears that President Roosevelt has been elected to an unprecedented fourth term, although by a smaller margin than his most ardent champions had claimed for him.

This must necessarily be tentative, since a tidal wave of votes—far greater than anyone had expected a fortnight ago—has swamped the election machinery. Defections in the territory on which Governor Dewey had counted most heavily for his slim hope of victory appear to have swung the balance in the President's favor.

This is particularly true of upstate New York, where the margin for Dewey, on the basis of early returns, is in many areas far less than the margin given to Wendell Willkie four years ago. It was the returns from the upstate counties that cast a pall of gloom over Republican headquarters early in the evening.

Massachusetts, Connecticut and Maryland appear safe for Roosevelt, along with Tennessee and Kentucky. These States, together with New York and its 47 electoral votes, are enough to give the Democrats the victory, even though Pennsylvania should finally slip into the Republican column. Added to the 170 votes which Roosevelt is almost certain to get from the Deep South and the West, they push the President over the line.

IN TIMES SQUARE the vast crowd watching the election returns alternately cheered and groaned as the lights flashed the latest returns. At Democratic headquarters the atmosphere fairly early was a gala one. The familiar figures of the campaign—Chairman Hannegan, Orson Welles, Paul Porter, Boss Ed Flynn—milled through crowded rooms, trying to pin down victory at the earliest possible moment.

Any celebration must inevitably be short-lived. Those who have engineered the President's reelection, and Roosevelt is No. 1 on that list, face a frightening responsibility. His is a burden such as few Presidents in our history have ever faced.

In a sense, President Roosevelt has thrown the dice against fate. He might have stepped out when it seemed certain that the war was moving to a victorious conclusion. He could have said, with logic and reason on his side, that it was time for others to take up the load. Instead, he sought the responsibility for a fourth term.

Surely it must have seemed the easier course to step out; the course that would most nearly assure his stature in history. Remaining in office for another term, he risks all his achievements. Now that the bitter partisanship of the campaign is ended, we can recognize that and give him credit for a decision that, as he must have foreseen, could run directly counter to his own self-interest.

It was Vice President Wallace who came on the air with the first claim to victory. That was long before the returns appeared conclusive. And with Roosevelt's victory, said the Vice President, went the leadership of Congress and the Nation.

It was a clear call for unity above and beyond the bitterness of the contest that is now ended. The people have spoken. To thwart their will is to risk the destruction of democracy. It is now in this critical time that we must show the world that our system is a workable one.

IN EVERY CORNER of the globe they were watching on Tuesday to see what we would do. It wasn't just our election. The outcome will cast a long shadow over the distance places of the earth.

One thing we can be proud of right away, and that is the big outpouring at the polls. Early in the campaign, the fear was that the President for the coming four years would be the choice of a minority. While it will be some time before the total vote is tabulated, reports from every part of the country indicate the vote may have exceeded the record 50 million of 1940.

From all reports, it was an orderly election. The feeling went deep. The fog of apathy had been dissipated in the fierce give and take of one of the most savage campaigns in recent times. Yet when the day came, ordinary Americans went out by the millions and voted in the secrecy of the polling booth.

We can cheer about that. We can pause for just a moment of satisfaction before we dig into the big jobs—final victory in the war and then reconversion to peace—that still lies ahead.

Pull Together

Now that the Nation has expressed its choice of a President for the next four years, let's forget the dissension of the past and all pull together through the troublesome days ahead so that our country may fulfill its destiny of being the greatest of all nations.

The People's Voice

The Significance Of 1944

VIEWED with the perspective of time, the election of 1944 will probably go down in history as significant not so much because it saw the election of President Roosevelt for a fourth term as because it marked the final and definite repudiation of the "solemn referendum" of 1920.

Whether the election of 1920 was in actuality a "solemn referendum" on the League of Nation is disputed by many students. Foreign policy issues in that campaign were by no means clear-cut. Harding's speeches looked both ways and he was supported not only by the isolationist wing of the Republican Party, but by many Republicans, such as William Howard Taft, who strongly favored American entry into the League.

The fact remains however, that the victors in the balloting chose to interpret the people's will as expressed in the 1920 election as a repudiation of Wilsonian internationalism and a mandate to return to a policy of aloofness.

FOR 20 YEARS the shadow of 1920 darkened the American scene, nor was it altogether lifted as a result of the events of 1940, including the election of that year.

Public opinion in 1940 was still substantially divided on the basic issues having to do not merely with the great international crisis of the moment, but with America's long-range role in world affairs. The irresistible force of events and the imperious demands of our own security were driving us into war on the side of the Allies. This was a repetition of the historic process. For no war of world dimensions that has broken out since Colonial days has failed to involve the American people. But our participation in world wars in the past had only intensified the American yearning for isolation, the American policy of aloofness, and there was no certainty that the same thing would not happen after World War II.

OF COURSE, the possibility cannot altogether be ruled out that that will happen again. But all the indications are that it is rather unlikely.

On the basic issues of foreign policy both candidates in this year's election were in substantial agreement. That is important. Even more important is the circumstance that the great majority of Americans were also in substantial agreement on those issues.

In fact an isolationist record by a candidate for office was this year, and practically for the first time in American history, a distinct liability.

The primary elections saw the rejection by the voters of their own party of such men as Senators Bennett Clark of Missouri and Worth Clark of Idaho and Rufus Holman of Oregon while others, such as Senator Robert E. Reynolds of North Carolina, after reading the writing on the wall, prudently decided not to run again.

This same trend was visible in last Tuesday's balloting. Not all pre-Pearl Harbor isolationists were beaten at the polls. But their number both in the Senate and the House has been cut down. Missing from their seats in the Capitol after January 3 will be such men as Representative Hamilton Fish of New York, Senator John A. Danaher of Connecticut, Senator Gerald Nye of North Dakota, Representative Stephen A. Day of Illinois.

In fact the 1944 campaign was the year in which politicians with an isolationist past were almost ready to sue for libel when called isolationists.

THIS UNITY of opinion on foreign policy that now prevails in the United States is a hopeful augury of the future. It means that President Roosevelt has been given a far more clear-cut mandate to go ahead with his plans to make this country a full participant in an effective international security organization than President Harding had to pursue a contrary course.

The election certainly proved that like the early reforms of the New Deal, such participation is no longer a question at issue.

Americans will differ as to the precise form, dimensions and functions of the new League as they will continue to differ on other foreign policy details. But this time there will be no going back to the past. The door on 1920 has been shut, finally and forever.

Grand Old Lady

Today, November 9, one of the most distinguished women of our time, the "Grand Old Lady of America," Maud Howe Elliott, celebrates her 90th birthday.

The daughter of Julia Ward Howe, author of that truly inspired poem "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," the writing of which in the Old Willard Hotel at Washington during the War Between the States, has been so vividly described by Alexander Woollcott, Maud Howe Elliott provides a wonderful link with the past. Her father was an intimate friend of Lafayette and took part in the Battle of Missolonghi in which Byron was killed in 1823.

Descended from John Ward, an officer of Oliver Cromwell, who later migrated to America, two of her ancestors, Michael Ward and Samuel Ward, were governors of Rhode Island, where for some years past Mrs. Elliott has made her summer home. Living now in a small cottage, which she calls "Lilliput," on the family estate, she is still the leader of a salon, her Sunday afternoon parties being the rendezvous of all sorts and conditions of men and women, the distinguished and interesting as well as the merely social. Generals and admirals, Senators and Ambassadors, painters and poets and society leaders, all do homage at the court of this gracious lady. They are all treated as equals, and even the dull are made to feel important by the friendly interest she shows in them.

As founder of the Newport Art Association with its 800 members, Mrs. Elliott has done more than anyone in recent years to maintain the high literary and artistic traditions of New England.

Mrs. Elliott is still, as she has been for nearly half the life of the Republic, an outstanding figure in its literary, artistic and social life. But she has played also a part on a larger stage: a role important if unobtrusive in London, Rome and Athens.

As the wife of John Elliott, the English pre-Raphaelite painter who designed the admirable murals and ceiling of the Boston Public Library and his lifetime studies preserved for posterity—the features of Henry James, Cardinal Merry Del Val, Queen Margherita of Italy, Lady Cromer (of Egypt) George Meredith and many others, Mrs. Elliott has done enduring work for international friendship, especially Anglo-American relations. "For a happy half of my life," she says, "I was a British subject." But throughout she has been a loyal American, too. Her acquaintance has included most of the great figures of her time in all fields of human activity: Longfellow, Abraham Lincoln, Gladstone, Rosebery, Burne-Jones, Millais, G. F. Watts, Gustave Dore, Eleanora Duse, Theodore Roosevelt, Admiral Sims, Henry Adams, President Taft, to name but a few.

Mrs. Elliott's character and career have interesting parallels with those of her mother: her balance of mind, classical taste, modesty and courage and her interest in the promotion of world friendship. As far back as 1870, her mother called on the women of America to work for the formation of a league of Nations. Like her mother, she is a literary and linquistical scholar and speaks fluently French, Italian, German and Greek.

It is a platitude when speaking of nonagenarians to say that they are as active mentally and physically as the middle-aged. In Mrs. Elliott's case this is no exaggeration. Her grace and beauty are as remarkable as ever.

Mrs. Elliott talks little of herself. A few months ago I took an English M. P. friend to meet her. She discoursed learnedly on the American Congress and English parliamentary systems. The M. P. had no idea of her age and was startled to hear her say, quite in passing that in 1859, she had intervened to save the life of a man who had been sentenced to be hanged. It was explained that this was John Brown!

Spanish Policy

With the resurgence of the struggle of the Spanish anti-Fascist forces to free their country from the Fascist yoke our continued recognition of Franco lengthens the duration of the war by providing the Nazis a source of war supplies and a base for future Fascist plots. There is no justification after the liberation of the Mediterranean Sea and France from the Nazi-Fascists to continue appeasing Franco by sending him supplies which not only help him to keep fascism in power in Spain but also to furnish material to Hitler.

It is bewildering to our soldiers who are so bitterly fighting the Nazi-Fascists to be told by our Spanish Ambassador that Franco is a good man. They know that the bullet or shell supplied to Hitler by Franco's copper, wolfram, mercury, sulphur, and iron ore is no less fatal than any other. They know that their task was made more difficult and their losses greater because they had to keep their rear covered against possible attack through Fascist Spain while they tortuously fought their way from Africa to Italy. They know the Spanish anti-Fascists helped liberate France.

And it is no less confusing to our Latin American neighbors to see our State Department condemn and apply repressive measures against Fascism in Argentina while Spanish fascism is praised. Our Latin-American neighbors know that the source of the agents for the Fascist plots in South America is Berlin and that they are sent via Franco Spain to the unfortunate countries to foster the plots of Berlin to establish Fascist bases in the New World.

Today we can help destroy this refuge of Fascism in Europe and source of the Fasciszation of Latin America by breaking off relations with Fascist Spain, recognizing a Spanish Government-in-Exile composed of representatives of the Spanish anti-Fascists who are fighting for a democratic Spain, and supplying that government with the materials necessary to achieve democracy in Spain.

'Crises' In France

By Paul Winkler

Debates On Methods

WHENEVER any important issue is discussed in France between the Council of National Resistance and the Provisional Government—and there are many vital decisions to be made—any indication of varying points of view produces headlines like: "Grave Political Crisis in France." But if you hasten to hunt through the following day's paper for the sequel, the headlines have disappeared. The "crisis" has faded away.

Take, for instance, the recent flurry over the incorporation of the French Forces of the Interior into the regular army. At a distance of 3000 miles, Mr. Average American Citizen could hardly be blamed for thinking that the army of the Maquis was on the point of revolting against the government's order that it enter the regular army. Yet the change was carried out according to plan, without any serious difficulties.

This "crisis" was followed by another one. This time it was on the question of the dissolution of the "Patriotic Militias" by the French government. From the Western Hemisphere perspective, this question seemed serious. The reports from Paris sounded as though the "conflict" on this point might end either with the resignation of the government and the corresponding triumph of the Council of National Resistance, or by the elimination of the Council of National Resistance, or by the elimination of the influence of the council from the conduct of public affairs.

What Really Happened

Suppose we look with a little more calm at the actual procession of events.

1. The French government expressed its appreciation of the great service which the Patriotic Militias had rendered in assuming police duties during the transitional period of confusion. It pointed out, however, that this period had terminated; that a new authority has been established; and therefore that police powers would thereafter be exercised by this authority.

2. The government then announced that means would be found to take into the local forces any former members of the militias who desired to serve in their regions.

3. The Council of National Resistance, commenting on the action of the government, expressed its regret that it had not been consulted before the announcement of the governmental plan, but stated its desire to cooperate with the government in working out the best means for utilizing the patriots. It concluded its statement with an appeal to the population which emphasized that the main objective of Frenchmen must be to remain united for the defense of the republican order and the interests of the nation.

Now all this denotes no "showdown" between the government on one hand and the council and the patriotic militias on the other. Whether or not it would have been wiser for the government to have consulted the council in advance is now beside the point. But it is probable that the discussion will bring about a modification of procedure for the future, to be followed until the return of prisoners of war and forced laborers permits the holding of definitive elections. In the meantime, a new type of democratic formula for cooperation between the resistance movements and the government is being evolved by a process of trial and error.

The only group which might create trouble concerning the disarming of the patriotic militias is the Communists. They may try to encourage their adherents to retain as many arms as possible secretly, for all future eventualities.

But whatever their point of view, it must be remembered that the Communists are not the resistance movement, but simply a minority within it. Moreover, it is unlikely that the Communists will do anything to disrupt the unity of the resistance movement.

Crux of Question

Major Hamon, vice president of the Paris Committee of Liberation, put the situation in a nutshell in a speech he made October 31:

"Any split between the government and the resistance is impossible. There will be no crisis in France, but we must avoid returning to the atmosphere of 1939-40."

This seems to be the key to the understanding of recent and future "conflicts" between the present French government and the resistance. Actually, these are not conflicts, but internal debates on methodology—for the two organizations are simply different manifestations of the same thing.

The Council of National Resistance represents today the crystallization of the spirit of France's peaceful, constructive revolution. The government is the administrative body which has to transplate that spirit into practical terms and apply it to the urgent tasks of reconstruction and of making France's participation in the closing phases of the war as important as possible.

If, from one side of this dual mechanism, an opinion is expressed which does not coincide with what has been heard from the other, that is not necessarily a sign of conflict, but may be that of cooperation. Each member is fulfilling its own role. That of the resistance is to safeguard vigilantly the revolutionary machinery with which it succeeded in defeating the fascistic regime. That of the government is to establish order and permanent legalized procedure.

America at War

New Florida Boom

THE GOLD COAST of Southern Florida will have an even greater influx of vacationing pleasure-seekers this winter than a year ago, if present signs are any indication. Miamians are frankly worried about the prospect.

Unless steps are taken to control the tourists, the story of last season's fantastic boom will be repeated in exaggerated form: overcrowded hotels, outrageous prices, GI bitterness at civilian profiteering, and at the end of the season thousands of sun worshippers stranded for lack of train space home.

Some of the stories about last year's boom were greatly overdrawn, Miamians will tell you. Two-room apartments at $2500 per month and neckties at $250 each were by no means typical. But $20 per day hotel rooms were common last winter, and may be considered cheap this season.

In Miami Beach—which has grown from around 5000 population in 1930 to perhaps 50,000 today—hotel space will be tighter than ever. Some of the beach hotels were turned back to civilian use after the Officer Candidate Schools were closed, but most of them have been taken back by the Army now.

Block after block of modernistic hotels are occupied exclusively by the military, with scarcely a civilian to be seen. Here is where soldiers with two years' service overseas are returned on furlough, under the rotation system. They enjoy the sunshine for a week or so, then go home for two or three weeks before being reassigned.

MANY OF THE civilian hotels, apartments and even auto camps already have their "No Vacancy" signs out. According to Hoke Welch, managing editor of the Miami News, the boom is a month ahead of schedule. A year ago the railroads were sold out a month in advance by October 15; this year the same point of congestion was reached on September 15.

Already one of Miami's three race tracks is open, and before long the fans are expected to break the record of over a million dollars in bets set at Hialeah last season. Soldiers who go to the races fume at the sight of out-of-State licenses and B and C stickers on the cars parked outside the track by the thousand.

That is perhaps the most vicious effect of the Florida winter spree—in wartime—the way it strikes the GI who is stationed there or passing through on his way to or from the war zones. The soldier would like to think he is fighting for a way of life which will make such luxury possible for all; but he resents the way some civilians spend their winters on the beach while the war is still on.

At Miami Army Air Base the boys complain that they have to spend a month's pay in order to have a gay evening in the city. Even worse is the housing problem. One junior officer just back from a two-year stretch at an air base in Brazil can find no place to live except a tourist cabin at $82 per month, and he expects to be evicted soon because the landlord can get more for it by the day when the auto tourist trade hits its stride.

Many commissioned and noncommissioned officers are able to have their wives and children with them during the sultry season, when rents are cut in half; but most of them are forced to send their families north when the high winter rates go into effect.

Their bitterness is understandable.

ONE HIGH-RANKING officer stationed at West Palm Beach told me that he was paying $300 a month for an ordinary three-room-and-bath apartment, and was being forced to move this month because the rate was to be doubled for the winter season. He was hunting desperately for a cheaper place, but was unable to find one.

OPA was reported to be inactive in the Palm Beach area, since the luxury trade is virtually immune to regulation. In Miami, OPA is more active, but there, too, ways have been found of getting around the rent controls.

Miami warworkers—thousands of whom are employed in the Consolidated Vultee plant, Tycoon Tackle, which makes parts for fighter planes, and four shipyards—are hard put to pay Miami rents, and most of the war plants are short-handed. Because of pressure from the real estate interests the program of the National Housing Agency has lagged.

Last month 1000 new war houses were authorized by NHA, but even including these the total number of houses programmed will total only 3326 family units. This is only a drop in the bucket compared to housing needs.

The threatened boom in southern Florida is the best argument I have seen for the rationing of railway pleasure travel. Most Floridians—especially the servicemen down there—would welcome steps to keep the number of tourists within reasonable bounds.

The least that could be done would be to make sure that every vacationist has hotel and return trip reservations, so that the housing crisis and the black market in Pullman tickets will not get out of hand again this year.

WFA to Ask All-Out Production Of Food Despite Surplus Bogey

By Christine Sadler

The War Food Administration is set to ask farmers for another all-out production year, fully conscious that to have enough food for war the country runs the risk of being left with huge surpluses come the peace.

"With VE-Day still in the future, WFA is ready to gamble on its ability to dispose of enormous amounts of agricultural products abroad in 1945 and on the national income remaining great enough for Americans to keep up their high wartime food purchases.

As more durable goods return to the market, farmers will have to compete with manufacturers of refrigerators, automobiles and vacuum cleaners for the consumer's dollar—but the war has proved Americans are not reluctant to put their extra dolars into food.

Not Real Problem

Secretary of Agriculture Wickard voiced this new philosophy about food recently when he suggested over-production may not have been the real farm problem during the depression years, but under-consumption. Almost any Department of Agriculture official will agree now that probably the farm problem begins in the cities. "Keep up incomes," they say, "and we can sell food. The war has shown that clearly."

So no appreciable reduction of acreage for any crop will be suggested when Agriculture sends its workers into the field this month to discuss 1945 goals with farmers. Wheat and rye goals, already announced, are a little above 1944 levels. Other grains will stay high; peanuts and soybeans, also. And a big increase will be asked for sugar beets to help plug the world shortage of sugar. Dried peas will be pushed again and truck crops to be supported by Government-guaranteed prices will be on a more selective basis.

Guaranteed Good Prices

Under price control act provisions, the farmer is guaranteed a good price for his products for two years after the war ends, but production goals could be lowered. To keep them high, WFA needs a much-increased backlog of money and Congress will be asked to make at least two billion dollars available to bolster the agency against possible losses from its purchase and support programs—and to permit export sales at a loss.

Permission to sell on the world market below prices prevailing in this country has been granted in the surplus property bill, but no money has been provided to bridge the gap between world prices and the Government-guaranteed prices to farmers. Despite rumblings from the State Department, plans for such exports are going ahead, with wheat and cotton earmarked as the first two commodities to be so subsidized.

Admiral's Wife to Aid

Mrs. J. K. Taussig, wife of Vice Admiral Taussig, has been appointed vice chairman of the District Red Cross Army and Navy Committee, it was announced yesterday. She will assist Mrs. Levin C. Allen, chairman of the committee, and wife of Major General Allen.

The committee is open to all service wives coming to Washington who wish to work for the Red Cross. For further information call Republic 8300, extension 107.

To Christen Sub Sunday

Mrs. William E. Hess, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., wife of the Ohio Representative, will sponsor the christening of the submarine, USS Carp, which will be launched at Groton, Conn., Sunday, the Navy Department announced last night.

Clare Luce Victorious, Denies Rancor

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 8 (AP).—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R.), successful in her campaign to return to Congress from Connecticut's Fourth District despite direct aid given her opponent by President Roosevelt and Vice President Wallace, said today that "the purge that failed leaves us without rancor or malice."

Mrs. Luce, blond playwright and magazine writer, defeated Margaret Connors, 29-year-old Fairfield lawyer, by an unofficial total of 102,070 to 99,767, in the Nation's only all-woman congressional contest.

While the votes were being counted, President Roosevelt, who gave Miss Connors a hearty endorsement when he stopped here last Saturday, remarked at Hyde Park, N. Y., that it would be "a mighty good things for the country" if Mrs. Luce were defeated.

She made no direct reply to that, but said "We respect the honest convictions of those who honestly opposed us, and we hope that we all may be given greater wisdom and courage to meet the task ahead." She promised that "I shall of course support the President in Congress in every measure which will hasten victory and insure a just and lasting peace."

In a reference to the support given Miss Connors in the hotly-waged campaign, Mrs. Luce said, "I was never running against her. I ran against the whole New Deal and the PAC."

Gill Favors Modernized Penal Services

Better medical and psychiatric services, a program for treating alcoholics as ill persons rather than criminals, and better industrial training were cited as immediate needs of the prison system here by Howard Gill, general superintendent of District penal institutions. Gill addressed the Civitan Club at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Right now there are three men awaiting execution in the jail, and none of them has been examined by a psychiatrist representing the State," Gill said. He asserted that each of them had mental quirks that should be given consideration before their cases were disposed of, and that he believed it the duty of the community to provide for psychiatric examinations.

He quoted statistics on alcoholics in the District Jail on a given day, 98 of whom had been jailed 50 or more times, and three of whom had been jailed 150 times before on the same charge. He said scientific treatment of similar cases in Cleveland, Ohio, had resulted in almost four-fifths of the patients practicing abstinence for a year after their treatment. The average number of these patients on relief during the following year was half that of jailed alcoholics released without scientific treatment.

"It is about time we completed our prison system," Gill said. He said the District penal institutions had been "living on the edge of a peach basket for 30 years, and that was too long."

Draft Appeals Denied in Only 4 of 472 Cases

Only four out of the 472 appeal and review cases that passed through the hands of the District of Columbia Selective Service Board of Appeal during the week ending October 21, were denied deferment or continued draft stays, it was announced yesterday.

One of these registrants was a Commerce Department physicist whose Government deferment request had expired. His deferment was lost in the review of occupational deferments granted by out-of-town boards to persons employed in the District—the sole reversal in 461 reviews.

The other three denials were to registrants who had appealed for occupational deferments. They were a 27-year-old streetcar operator who wanted to be placed in 2-A, a 26-year-old OWI "propoganda broadcaster" who asked for "hardship" deferment, and a 30-year-old War Department agricultural economist who wanted to be switched from a conscientious objector's status to an occupational classification. The appeals of seven other registrants were granted.

Among 99 physically fit men who retained deferments on review were 14 under the age of 26. Ten of these were included among 70 employes of the Navy Yard, Navy Department and Naval Research Laboratory retained in 2-B, 1 was among 5 non-Navy employes kept in the same group, and 3 were students affirmed in 3-A.

The deferred young men were: Navy employes—Meredith T. Slater, 25, and Walter F. Bock, 25, machinists; David Asch, 24, engineering draftsman, and John H. Kurtz, 34, toolmaker. Navy Department employes—Peter F. Nicol, 25; Earle R. Amey, 25; Warren M. Benson, 24; David C. Wyckoff, 24; Ralph L. Haney, 24, and Claude L. Straub, 22, all engineers. George Zibritosky, 23, is a mechanical engineer for the Bureau of Standards. The three dentistry students were Frank K. Green, 20, Georgetown; George F. Jackson, 22, and Francis M. Foster, 23, Howard.

New Rapid Treatment For Syphilis Reported

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—A new rapid and safe treatment for syphilis has been developed by Dr. Harry Eagle, of the United States Public Health Service research laboratory at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore.

Dr. Eagle reported in an article published in the Journal, American Medical Association publication, that the method probably was effective in 85 to 90 per cent of the cases treated.

The method is based on the use of mapharsen, an arsenic compound and bismuth subsalicylate over a period from 9 to 12 weeks. Mapharsen is administered intravenously and bismuth is given in intramuscular injections.

One Dead as War Plane Crashes in Test Trip

Baltimore, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co. announced today that one of its B-26 Marauders had crashed while on a routine company test flight near Easton, Md., killing one man.

A Martin spokesman said a second flight engineer, one of three men in the plane at the time, was killed. His name was withheld at the request of army officials pending notification of next of kin.

The spokesmen said the pilot, Henry Poplawski, and the flight engineer, R. L. Woody, parachuted to safety.

Even After This Happens, American Women Can't Relax

Even after Killer Hitler himself throws in the sponge, American women must not relax on saving used fats in their kitchens. Because all our victories in Europe cannot help our serious fat shortage problem one bit.

It's the Japs who still have our fats. They have had them ever since they grabbed off those territories in the Pacific that used to supply us with one billion pounds a year! Our fat salvage job isn't done until we blast the Nips out.

In the meantime, every drop of used fats is urgently needed to help make the tons of munitions, medicines, synthetic rubber and soaps that are needed for final victory.

You women supported the country magnificently by saving fats during the black days of the European war. Don't let down now. Keep saving—harder than ever—until V-J Day! Remember, the government gives you 2 free red points for every pound.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

ONE OF THE MOST important documents bearing on the postwar world soon will be issued by the British government in the form of a White Paper. It will be a survey of Britain's financial position and a frank admission that she is bankrupt.

The White Paper will tell in detail how British investments throughout the world have been liquidated to pay for the war and will come to the conclusion that, if the British Empire is to continue free trading, she must have outside help.

The alternative to free trade and free competition, the White Paper will say, is a system of barter, restricted trade and cartels, such as that practiced by Germany after the last war. International cartels, of course, have been blasted publicly by President Roosevelt and one British corporation, Imperial Chemical Industries, already has been prosecuted by the Justice Department on a charge of conspiring with the du Ponts before the war to control the world production of certain chemicals.

According to inside word from the Diplomatic Corps, the publication of Britain's frank survey of her bankrupt financial position will coincide with the secret conferences now taking place here between Lord Keynes and United States officials regarding the renewal of lend-lease.

With the war in Europe nearing a close and with United States forces now getting a greater proportion of war supplies direct from the United States, British war needs for lend-lease are dwindling. However, the British have proposed, in Lord Keynes' private conversations, a new type of postwar lend-lease whereby the British could resell goods to foreign countries in order to reestablish their export trade.

Keynes Proposal

Word leaking from the diplomatic corps is that Lord Keynes now proposes a total lend-lease allotment to Great Britain of six and a half billions for 1945, of which three and a half billions could be re-exported in British trade. Most of this would be in the form of American raw materials which the British would process into finished goods and then sell. The British do not propose that finished American products be given them for re-export, but only that they get lend-lease raw materials to revive their crippled industries.

One proposal is to set up a new postwar lend-lease court composed of one Britisher and two Americans which would decide which goods could be used for British trading purposes.

The whole plan will be submitted to Congress probably before Christmas, and promises to be full of controversy.

NOTE—General Pat Hurley and Jim Landis, U. S. economic administrator in Cairo, both submitted scorching reports on the use of British lend-lease in the Near East, claimed it was being used to bolster British trade. Recently, however, Landis has been more satisfied.

Army's Prefabricated Bridges

ONE OF THE GREAT but little known stories of the Western Front is the way in which Army engineers got a group of bridge experts together nearly two years ahead of the European invasion and designed fabricated sections of bridges which would exactly replace specific bridges in France, Holland and Belgium.

Through the European underground, Army engineers were able to get exact measurements of the bridges which they knew would be destroyed by the retreating Nazis. Each part was numbered, and special assembly crews, trained in England, rehearsed the job of putting them in place.

When the invasion came, these bridges traveled so close behind our advancing armies that they were frequently ahead of the field kitchens. And on arrival at a destroyed bridge, its replacement was a matter of hours.

Cool Witness Before Senators

LEAST RUFFLED witness before a congressional committee in a long time was George K. Simmons, publisher of the Philadelphia Trade Union News.

This is the sheet which first published the story linking Sidney Hillman with a group of New York racketeers, plus the series of pictures which put President and Mrs. Roosevelt, Fanny Perkins and other high Government officials alongside Lepke, Gurrah and various members of Murder, Inc., some of whom have now been electric-chaired.

This story was later published in pamphlet form by the Pennsylvania State Republican Committee—which, however, omitted to identify itself as a publisher of the three million copies.

Simmons appeared last week before the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee. Masthead of his Trade Union News lists E. B. Faunce as "Publisher and Managing Editor." Asked to identify Faunce, Simmons said he was the printshop foreman. Simmons himself is editor—with no editorial staff.

Although Simmons published the Hillman story, he did not attempt to check the facts. He did, however, publish a box stating that the editors of the Trade Union News had gone to great pains to get the story and give their readers the facts. He admitted, under questioning by Senator Joe Ball, that this was published "just to impress the readers."

Asked the circulation of the paper, Simmons replied, "I told you gentlemen 20,000. Actually it's about 2000." Senator Homer Ferguson sharply remarked that Simmons had earlier said "20,000" while under oath.

When Ball quizzed him about his staff—or, rather, his lack of staff—Simmons explained that he did not need a staff because the paper prints only labor news.

"I see," Ball replied, looking at the screaming headlines linking Hillman with gangsters. "Nothing sensational."

Merry-Go-Round

THE SENATE SMALL BUSINESS COMMITTEE recently issued a buyers' guide for surplus war property—a catalogue of goods to help businessmen purchase different types of surplus Government property. Next day the committee got a call from the office of North Dakota's Senator Nye. One of his constituents, learning of the catalogue, had wired Nye to instruct the Senate Small Business Committee to send her an electric iron . . . Broadcasters have been stampeded by the plan of William Benton and Joe Weiner to operate a frequency modulation radio service on a subscription basis, free of advertising. Commercial radio men now are either trying to dope out a way of blocking this service or looking for some way in which they can participate . . . When PAC Chairman Sidney Hillman spoke before the National Press Club he did not ask that press reports of his remarks be cleared with him first. GOP Chairman Brownell, speaking before the Press Club earlier, had insisted that his words be off the record.

Alice From Dallas Gets Loyal Support

Dallas, Texas (U.P.)—Informed quarters have long felt that the practice of naming airplanes after feminine acquaintances would lead to trouble, and trouble is indeed brewing here in a dispute over prior rights to the name "Alice From Dallas."

The original "Alice From Dallas" is a Liberator well known over Europe, having flown almost 50 missions. The pilot, Lieut. Mark Hughes, named the plane for his wife.

Now the ship is about to be retired, and in New Guinea, Lieut. Mark Hodges is going to name his ship "Alice From Dallas."

But the family and friends of the original "Alice" don't like it all and are considering legal action to keep the name exclusive.

They believe "their plane" has made such a great record that its name should be protected.

If you think Notre Dame can bounce back from its experience with Navy and beat Army come Saturday, you have 14 points to start with. That's how the professional betting geats are viewing the game. They are the same astute guys who made Navy a 2-to-1 favorite over the Irish and were quite correct.

POVICH

Unbeaten Army hasn't scored a point against Notre Dame in the last five years, but that hasn't deterred the odds layers. They recognized this as a year when Army, like Navy, is loaded and when Notre Dame is shy the traditional manpower that usually comes roaring out of South Bend.

Notre Dame was licked last week by a Navy's powerful demonstration of what a properly manned single-wing attack can do, with its ability to concentrate a ground attack in any sector of its choosing. This week the Irish meet up with the Army's T formation based more on precision than power, but that may be small consolation for Notre Dame.

Even the betting gentry does not think, however, that Army is as solid a risk against Notre Dame as was Navy. The fact that they are putting the game on a point basis instead of a money basis is significant. Army, despite its huge scores, hasn't licked much as yet and is untested.

Notre Dame will be improved in at least one spot on Saturday, at center. Ed Szymanski, last year's regular, has rejoined the Irish after getting an honorable discharge from the Army last week. It was in the line, where Pat Filley was the only veteran, that the Irish took their worst beating from Navy. With Szymanski in the roving center job, Army could find the going tougher than did the Midshipmen.

It's apparent now, that Notre Dame's chief mistake against Navy was the time expended futilly in trying to mount a running attack against the Middies. When, in the second half, the Irish went into the air, they staged two impressive touchdown passes with Frank Dancewicz hitting his two tall ends, Guthrie and O'Connor, with fancy passes.

Navy's pass defense, which had not been one of the bad features of the team's play during the ragged early season games, was looking exceedingly panicky in the final half against Dancewicz's passing, and that could give the Irish ideas against Army.

When Army ran through Villanova, 83-0, last week, Felix Blanchard was not even in the West Point backfield. Blanchard, who is being called the best T-Formation fullback in recent years in deference to his rugged ballcarrying, will be available for the game Saturday. Like Navy, Army is deep in power in the backfield.

The latest to distinguish himself in the Army backfield is Arnold Tucker, whose forward-passing exhibition last week stamps him as a threat comparable perhaps to the running of Blanchard and Glenn Davis. Tucker, like most of the Army backs, is a transfer, with previous varsity experience. He got his with the University of Florida.

Army's line has torn up all opposition this season, and is being compared favorably with Navy's tremendous line play. The green Notre Dame forwards were continually mouse-trapped by Navy last Saturday, and in the line it is certainly the worst Notre Dame team that, perhaps, ever came East.

It is too early yet to write off the running threat of Bob Kelly, despite the fact that he never broke away against Navy. The Irish won't wrap up their offensive in a passing game until they at least test Kelly against the West Point line. In any event, he's the man Army must watch. After all, he's the best pass-receiver on the team.

Where Navy played hob with the Irish last week was in the Notre Dame secondary defense. Dancewicz as a safety man was pathetically weak, and on Kelly developed most of the tackling. One thing is certain, Army can hardly throw in front of its backs a better downfield blocker than Navy's Dick Duden who convoyed Navy's backs on their longest gains.

Traditionally, Notre Dame keys its emotions higher for the Army game than the Navy game. The Irish have gone into New York in previous years as seemingly destined to lose as they are on Saturday, and they've won. That's to be remembered.

The Sports Patrol:

Irish Hope to Win Another Over Cadets for the Gipper

By Oscar Fraley

New York, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—The Fighting Irish of Notre Dame are determined tonight to make the Gipper happy again and keep alive their record of never having lost to both Army and Navy in the same year.

The Gipper is an ever-present thought in the minds of the Kelly kids. He set them a precedent by beating the Army three times—and still once more after the grim reaper blew the final whistle. And now that they've lost to Navy, the lads from South Bend are determined not to let the Gipper down against the West Pointers—a foe he loved to meet and beat.

George Gipp went to Notre Dame to play football, and became the greatest football legend of the Fighting Irish. He hadn't played football until Knute Rockne saw him punting in a vacant lot. The Rick liked his natural grace and the Gipper did the rest for three years.

Starred Three Years

In his sophomore year, the Gipper blocked an Army touchdown pass to give Notre Dame a 7-to-2 win. His junior year he led the team to a 12-0 victory over the Cadets and then, in his final season, George Gipp played his greatest game against the Army, Tha was 1920, and the Gipper passed for three touchdowns, made another on a long run and kicked three extra points in a 27-17 Irish triumph.

Later that fall, the game of life ended for the Gipper. He had just been named All-American fullback by Walter Camp and the White Sox were bidding for his post-graduation services. It was national news when the 23-year-old athlete died of pneumonia.

But eight years later he beat the Army again.

Notre Dame, in that 1928 campaign, had been battered badly by Wisconsin, Georgia Tech and Carnegie Tech. Then came Army, the Gipper's old love and hatem just as today, the Cadets were undefeated, riding a six-game winning streak.

"It was a scoreless deadlock when Rock followed the weary team into the dressing room at half time. He said only a few words. He told them of the Gipper, and the last words the Gipper spoke."

Gipps Last Words

"I've got to go, Rock. It's all right. I'm not afraid. But sometime, Rock, when the team's up against it, when things go wrong and the breaks are beating the boys, tell them to go in there with all they've got and win just one for the Gipper.

"I don't know where I'll be then, but I'll know about it—and I'll be happy."

Notre Dame was an inspired ball club that second half. Halfback Jack Chevigny was a phantom Gipp as he raced through the entire Army team for a touchdown. But the Cadets fought back to tie it up. Then, as the end drew near, Johnny Niemiec faded back, cocked his arm and tossed a pass to Johnny O'Brien on the 15-yard line and Johnny took her over.

And as O'Brien stepped into the end zone with the winning points he looked up and shouted to the heavens:

"There's the one for you, Gipper."

No matter where the Gipper was, they knew they had made him happy. And as the fighting Irish go against the Army Saturday the men of Notre Dame know that the Gipper will be looking down again—and they're out to keep him happy.

Justice Sparks Bainbridge Attack

Bainbridge, Md., Nov. 8 (AP).—"Choo-Choo" Charlie Justice, the 19-yaar-old whiz back of the Bainbridge Naval Training Center football team, continues to pick up steam as the undefeated Commodores road down the stretch.

With six games behind him, including tussles with high-ranking Camp Peary, Va., North Carolina Preflight, and Maxwell Field, Ala., the 165-pound Justice has racked up 54 points through nine touchdowns to put him high among the East's top scorers.

"Choo-Choo" has carried the ball from scrimmage 25 times for an average of 12.3 yards each try. He has laid hands on the ball 40 times, including kick returns and pass receiving, and has amassed 611 yards for an average of 15 yards plus.

Bainbridge meets the Cherry Point, N. C., Marines here Saturday.

Lane Injured, Fight With Cavold Setup

Chicago, Nov. 8 (AP).—The 10-round bout between Lee Savold, Paterson, N. J., heavyweight, and Larry Lane, Newark, N. J., scheduled for the Coliseum tonight, was postponed today due to an injury to Lane's right ankle sustained in training.

Dr. John Grammis, physician for the Illinois State Athletic Commission, refused to pass Lane when he appeared for examination. Lane turned his ankle last Friday and it failed to respond to treatment.

Promoter Jack Kearns said a new date for the fight would be set for some time during the first week in December.

C. T. Chenery Entry Wins Going Away

By Walter Haight
Post Staff Writer

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 8.—C. T. Chenery's Hornbeam, a busy and successful campaigner at the Laurel meeting, triumphed at the second asking over this trick. Operating in a field of eight, the 4-year-old son of Whiskaway turned on the heat in the stretch and finished a going-away winner by a half length. Chris Gross' recently-claimed Kopla was second and three lengths in front of Edgehill Stable's Viva Teddy. William Helis' Sophocoles and Gustave Ring's Hasteville, a pair who drew most of the heavy backing, failed to reach serious contention.

Hornbeam, beaten in his first appearance here, was a $15.30 shot and was clocked in 1:11 4-5, matching the fastest time of the meeting. A crowd of 9000 saw the program conducted under clear conditions.

Takes Early Lead

Kopla went to the front early, drew oout but Hornbeam was always close up while under Jockey Doug Dodson's handling. Layaway was third with Soophocoles fourth and Hasteville last. In the stretch, Sophocoles faltered, Hasteville rallied mildly and Hornbeam went on to dispost of Kopla. Viva Teddy closed with good energy to be third.

The victory was the fifth of the year in 19 tries for Hornbeam. The race was the Masked General, named for the honest campaigner owned by the Brandywine Stable.

Man-Adroit, owned by former Jockey Eddie DeCamillis, was the winner of the opening event. With Jockey K. Seawthorn doing the booting the 4-year-old finished a length and a half in advance of Mrs. H. B. Donegan's Eploration and two additional lengths in advanceof Louise M. Butt's Waugh Pop.

Winner Pays $5.90

The winner was a $5.90 favorite and was clocked in 1.49 for the mile and a sixteenth.

Seawthorn rated Manadroit in the first flight early, sent the son of Challenger II to the front leaving the backstretch and then booted hard to hold the opposition safe. Exploration and Waugh Pop closed willingly to fill out the money bracket.

H. C. Hatch's Wee Ossie, making his fourth start of his career, emerged from the maiden ranks by winning the second event by three lengths. Jockey Nick Jemas was aboard and the Canada invader paid $7.30 after opening at 15-1 on the approximate odds board. H. Quante's Gallant Son was second and a half length in advance of Mrs. C. W. Williams' Ted Wes. Wee Ossie was closest to Fair Bid's pace, took command in stretch and then drew out. The son of Sweepster was clocked in 1.15 for the six furlongs. The daily double paid $90.80.

Ex-Va. Tech Coach Faces Overseas Duty

Ottumwa, Ia., Nov. 8 (AP).—Drawling, leathery Lieut. James R. (Jimmy) Kitts, USNR, former Virginia Tech football coach, soon will be off to Pacific duty after two years of hardening the muscles of more than 4000 aspiring naval aviators at the naval station here.

As a side-line, Lieutenant Kitts has fielded some of the most powerful sports teams in th eMidwest. He was one of the first officers to report at Ottumwa and was named officer in charge of the cadet regiment and of physical training.

Kitts entered the coaching field after a brilliant college athlete career at Southern Methodist where he was a football end and quarterback, a basketball forward and a baseball infielder. For sevel summers he played professional baseball with the Dallas and Houston clubs in the Texas League, later trying out with the New York Giants.

Hist first assignment as a coach was as freshman coach at Dallas University. In 1926 he transferred to Athens, Tex., High. In 1932 he went to Rice Institute, becoming head football coach in 1934. Leaving Rice, he vacationed in 1940 before accepting the coaching berth at Virginia Tech where in his first season he brought that school its best grid squad since 1932.

While his job here keeps him busy, he has still a chance to give his 17-year-old son, Jimmy, jr., Ottumwa High's bruising fullback, a fe wpointers about the game.

Bainbridge Booters Beat Navy, 3 to 1

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 8 (AP).—Navy's soccer team suffered its first defeat of the season today at the hands of the Bainbridge Naval Training Center by a score of 3 to 1. Bainbridge's Sokolowski starred with two tallies.

The visitors' veteran eleven outclassed the Tars completely in the first half, but the resilient Navy team staged a comeback to make the remainder of the game an evenly fought battle.

Middie Starcalisto was carefully guarded, and unable to score, the only goal for Navy was kicked by center half Bob Leuschner on a midfield penalty.

Down, But Not Out, in Belmont 'Chase

Jockey Miller mountainted after taking this spill at the United Hunts meeting and brought his steed, Greek Flag, in third in the race. At this point the rider is leading his mount by a nose.

Terp Gridders Leave Today For State Tilt

University of Maryland's football Terps will leave today for East Lansing, Mich., where they are scheduled to clash with Michigan State Saturday in the Spartans' homecoming game.

The game will mark the second time the Terps have met the Spartans this season, Michigan State having defeated Maryland at College Park three weeks ago in a rain and wind storm, 8-0.

Coach Clarence Spears' charges have yet to crash the win column and their chances of doing so against the powerful Spartans are slim. Michigan State has one of the toughest ball clubs in the Middle West. The Spartans suffered their first setback of the season last Saturday, losing a heartbreaker to Missouri.

Several grid critics claim, if the field is dry Saturday, the Marylanders are in for a licking. However, Spears has driven the Terps at a fast pace the past few days in an attempt to have his charges in top shape and there are those who will tell you the Marylanders have a 50-50 chance of upsetting the Spartans.

Spears sent the Terps through a two-hour workout last night under the lights in Byrd Stadium and indicated following the workout that he contemplated no changes in his starting line-up. If Spears strings along with the same boys who have been starting most of the games, the following boys will open against Michigan State: Frank Doory and Norma Geatz at ends; Pat Moran and Randolph Bishop at tackles; Si Continetti and Les Daly at guards and Ken Malone at center.

Maryland's starting backfield will probably consist of Sal Fastuca at quarterback, Bob Troll, former Central star, and Sammy Behr at the halfbacks and Chuck Ryan at full. Tom Chisari, former St. John's player, Bob Buckley of Newark, N. J., and Harry Jones, 17-year-oldster from Harrisburg, Ill., are other backfield men who are slated for a lot of action.—DICK WYATT.

Softball Meeting

Winchester, Va., Nov. 8.—Softball fans will meet Monday to elect new officers and plan for the 1945 activities of the city softball league. Included in the important matters for discussion are ways and means to raise funds for installing lights at the city ball park.

Cage Capitals Meet N.Y. Five Here Saturday

No fewer than three former Temple and two former City College of New York basketball stars will appear with Coach Pete Barry's Washington Capitals when they entertain New York's Jewels in an exhibition game at Uline Arena Saturday night, 8:30 o'clock.

Barry yesterday announced that Bob Dorn, 6 foot 5 inch center, and Dick Nockinson and Steve Juenger, forwards, are former Temple Owls who will represent the local American Basketball League entry. Also that "Red" Holman and Ace Grant, who once performed for City College, are on his roster.

Jack O'Brien, former captain of Columbia University's Lions; Jack Peters, former St. John's College ace, and Sol Schwartz, formerly of St. John's College of Brooklyn, also are to perform for the Caps.

The Jewels are bringing in a star-studded team that spotlights Fred Fry, formerly a three letter man at Long Island University; Jackie Curran, originally a great star with St. John's, and Ed Blazer, lightning fast former Brooklyn College ace.

Bill Klem Calls Marion Equal of Wagner as Fielder

Miami Beach, Fla., Nov. 8 (AP).—Bill Klem, the old arbitrator who'll tell you he never called one wrong, put in a word or so today into the current debate over the relative baseball-playing ability of Slats Marion, the Cardinals' fancy shortstop, and John Honus Wagner, the Flying Dutchman of former days.

"I'll have to admit," he said, "that the Marion kid handles himself as well as Wagner in the field."

But before the Marion supporters claim victory, let Klem finish:

no Wagner, and indeed few were.

"Of course, at the bat Marion is Old Hans had it all over him there, and at running bases he was a master where Marion isn't. Hans' size used to scare the opposition, too. Marion hasn't his size. His arms may be as long as Wagner's, but no longer.

"You know," tthe umpire continued, "the first year Marion was up there (1940) I watched him play and really felt sorry for him. He coudn't do anything right. But the next year I was so impressed I had to tell him, "Son, you're the most improved ballplayer I ever did see.'

"And what a shortstop he is now!"

Central Meets Tech Saturday In Feature Tilt

By Newton Bowers
Post Staff Writer

The hottest game of the current interhigh football season is anticipated Saturday when the Trainers of Tech face the Vikings of Central, 3 p. m., at Central stadium.

Saturday will mark the first time this season that an interhigh concontest has been played other than Friday. Two games are slated tomorrow also when Coolidge's Colts invade Anacostia and Western's Red Raiders play host to the Green Tigers of Wilson.

Games Start at 3 P. M.

Both games will begin at 3 p. m. instead of the usual 3:45, it was announced by Anthony (Tony) Kupka, recently appointed director of physical education in District public schools.

Despite Central's record this season of three victories against one loss, Tech will hold a slight edge over the Vikings. The Trainers have split four games, but even in their two losses they have displayed a potent attack via every route possible—passing, running and kicking.

Tech's big guns will be the elusive Halfback Joe Buell, a triple threat man who has put on some exhibitions this season that virtually has various coaches gasping; Andy Davis, a powerful fullback, and Tom Tulengo, a pass and kicking threat.

Aside from its great offensive, Tech has an air-tight defense, but in this department, Central is also strong. The Vikings have some pretty good boys representing their backfield in aerial wizard Larry Fyanes and Carl Riddle. These boys have been key men in each Central victory this season.

Raiders Face Test

Western's Red Raiders, with exception of the mighty Ramblers of Eastern, the hottest team in the loop at present, faces a big test in Wilson's Green Tigers. Coach Fred Mulvry's squad lost their opener this season, tied Anacastia in their second fray and then caught afire, winning three in a row, including an upset over Central.

Western, after searching around for talent for quite some time to build its backfield around, came up with a humdinger recently when Lanky Jack Castro was transferred from end to halfback and became a sensation pronto.

With the fleet-footed Castro on the receiving end of some Gene Gould passes, Wilson will have his hands full—but good. The Green Tigers, however, offer a serious threat in the aerial talents of Pierce (Sleepy) Godfrey and Gene Taylor. The chief difference in the two teams is found on the forward walls, where Westren has by far the superiority.

Coolidge's Colts, a team last yea rthat terrorized scholastic football but this year has run into difficulties galore, winning but one interhigh contest, faces a tough aggregation in the Indians of Anacostia.

Despite the fact the Indians have lost their last two straight, they have one of the better teams in the loop, capitalizing on the passing of Ronald Kent, a halfback. Coolidge will offer a Ken Hazel to Buck (Bobo) Henry, a 6-foot, 4-inch of earnest endeavor, pass combination that has been clicking excellent recently.

They Come Big Out Tulsa Way

By Ben Funk

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 8 (AP).—Forrest (Chubby) Grigg is just a freshman, but Tulsa's rabid football fans are seeing lots of him.

There's a whale of a lot of Chubby to see. He packs 300 pounds on a 6-foot-3-inch frame, and when he moves into the left tackle slot for the Golden Hurricane he puts every pound into action.

The 18-year-old Texan's ability to wreck enemy plays with a sweep of his mighty arms has delighted the fans and taken the spotlight from the backs who usually monopolize the headlines.

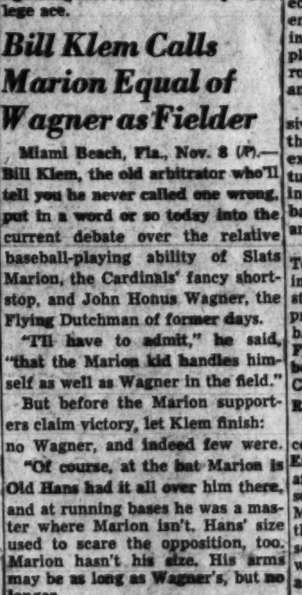
Chubby, an amiable gent off the field, but strrifying character to the citizens across the line of scrimmage, hails from Longview, Tex., where he was an all-State high school star.

Tulsa's line coach, Mike Milligan, a stern taskmaster who hates blubber with a purple passion, peered at the lumbering youn giant and licked his lips.

"Oh, boy," he muttred. "Watch me peel the pounds off this big tub."

Milligan threw the training book at poor Chubby. Every day, under the hot September sun, he worked him until the fat boy's tongue was draped over his chest like a rose-colored four-in-hand necktie.

After two weeks, Milligan triumphantly put Chubby on the scales, then let out a howl of amazement. Chubby still weighed 300 pounds.



CHUBBY GRIGG

Gus Dorazio to Meet Dixie Oliver Nov. 20

Dixie Oliver, leading heavyweight fistic candidate in the District, moves up for his major test Monday, November 20, as Promoter Joe Turner and Matchmaker Gabe Menendez late yesterday closed with Gus Dorazio of Philadelphia, to face the hard-punching local ace at Turner's arena.

Because of Oliver's spurt in recent weeks, with four successive knockout victories, this is the timeliest and best heavyweight feature closed here this year.

Defeated Hart Here

Dorazio has waged several hard-fought bouts here. His last was a 12-rounder victory against Al Hart at Uline's Arena. The Philadelphia slugger has scored two triumphs over Hart, but his most important victories were over Bob Pastor and Joe Baksi. He dealt the latter, now a top-flight heavyweight, his first defeat and had him near a k. o. in the last two rounds. Dorazio, one of the most punishing hitters in the game, also floored Pastor during their memorable battle.

The 196-pound Oliver stopped Johnny Denson in a scorching fight when he last appeared at the Arena. He also has belted out Gil Stromquist, huge Texan; Jimmy Grimmage and Teddy Horton and outpointed Mose Thomas and Johnny Allen.

Ready for Big Test

It is the strongest record compiled here by a heavyweight in the last three years, and Turner and Menendez feel he is now ready for his main test.

Dorazio, with his brawling, body-punching style, will place the big Florida aspirant under severe pressure and it is the hardest test he could be given at this stage of his career.

Passer Tucker Is Rated High At West Point

By Harold Classen

West Point, N. Y., Nov. 8 (AP).—This is to introduce Mr. Young Arnold (Chuckin' Tuck) Tucker of the Army football team to the Notre Dame forces, to the 72,000 fans expected to see their clash in New York City's Yankee Stadium Saturday and to gridiron fans.

But you can take it from Lieut. Col. Earl Blaik, Army's head coach, that the "Chuckin' Tuck" is a very sharp description of the Floridan who gained earlier experience at the University of Florida.

Tucker's 40yard scoring pass to John Sauer in the 83 to 0 pasting given Villanova convinced Blaik that Tucker, recognized all season as the Cadets' best passer, was ready for the big show.

Tucker's passing, combined with blasting prowess of Doc Blanchard and Bobby Dobbs and the end sweeps of Glenn Davis and Joe Hall, gives Army the attack it hopes will end the 13-year victory drought it has experienced as Notre Dame's rival. The Cadets haven't scored since 1938.

Notre Dame, however, comes East with a pair of twirling twins in Frank Dancewicz and Joe Gasparella. They have tossed 107 aerials this season, completing 54 for 897 yards. And Coach Ed McKeever has promised "that we will throw that ball around plenty against Army."

Angott Gets $5000 Offer To Box Wright

Promoter Goldie Ahearn last night wired Charley Jones, manager of Sammy Angott, an offer of a $5000 cash guarantee and an option of 35 per cent of the receipts for a bout involving the former world's lightweight champion and the winner of the eight-round boxing bout bringing together Bee Bee Wright and Billy Morris at Uline Arena Monday night.

Ahearn would stage this bout at Uline's December 11, and believes this offer will interest Jones, who presently is supervising Angott's training for his bout with Jimmy McDaniel in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Ahearn previously had offered Angott a substantial percentage of the receipts to box Wright here, but Jones had held out for a cash guarantee. This latest action, Goldie Ahearn believes, will force the hand of the one-time lightweight king.

Wright, one of the most respected welterweights in the land, is being passed up by many of the high-ranking boys, and Ahearn consequently decided to offer Angott a purse that will be hard to refuse for such a bout.

Commodores' Fencers to Open Season Nov. 18

Bainbridge, Md., Nov. 8 (AP).—Bainbridge Naval Training Center athletic officials disclosed today that the Commondores' fencing team would open its 1944 season with a foils match against Polytechnic School of Baltimore on November 18 at Bainbridge.

Coach Ed Lucia, chief specialist and former assistant to George Santelli, Olympic coach, said he expected his outfit to better last season's record of four wins and two defeats.

Oscar Parsons, former three-weapon titleholder of the Philadelphia division of the AFLA, is captain. The team includes Harold Levitis, former Georgia foil and dueling sword ace; Albert Donan, who studied under Marcel Pasche, and James Demetrius, runner-up in the interscholastic matches of New York City several seasons ago.

The Commodores' probable schedule will include matches with Bethesda Naval Hospital, Philadelphia Fencing Club, New York University, Columbia University, New York Athletic Club, Baltimore Fencing Club and the Naval Academy.

Auto Races Legal—But, No Gas, Tires

Automotive racing is legal again—but without rationed gasoline or tires.

The Office of Defense Transportation today partially lifted a ban, in effect since July 1, 1942, to permit cerain vehicles, such as English-type motorcycles and midget automobiles, to race again.

These vehicles, ODT said, can be poyered by nonrationed industrial alcohol or petroleum derivatives. Some tires are available from prewar stocks which have not been rationed because theyare of types not suitable for ordinary use.

Giants, Eagles Neck and Neck In Statistics

Philadelphia, Nov. 8.—Statistically about the only difference between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Eagles when they meet in Shibe Park Sunday in the most important game on the National League schedule will be the weight of their respective coaches.

In five games, Stout Steve Owens' Giants have made 49 first down to 30 for the Eagles. Thirty-six have come to the Giants through rushing against 37 for Philadelphia. In first downs passing, the score is Giants, 12; Eagles,11. Opponents' penalities have given New York one first down and Philadelphia two.

Running from the T formation, Greasy Neale's fleet backs have rushed 210 times, while Giants, giving the ball to Bill Paschal nearly half the time, have carried 208 times. And average gains per rush are 4 against 4.1, with the Eagles having the better of it by one-tenth of a yard.

Philadelphia has a little edge in passing with 25 completions in 56 attempts for a .447 average, while New York has compiled a .361 average on 22 completions in 61 attempts. They are virtually even in punting, both in frequency and average distance. The Giants' 31 punts have averaged 39 yards and the Eagles' 33 tallied up to 39.2 yards per punt.

But defensively the Giants shape up a little more formidable, a circumstance which bothers Philadelphia not at all, in as much as the Eagles have already beaten the Giants, 24 to 17, and enter the game tied for the division lead with Washington half a game ahead of the New Yorkers.

Lt. Col. Parrish To Fly Here for Morgan-Warhawks

Lieut. Col. Noel F. Farrish, commanding officer at Tuskegee (Okla.) Airfield, will fly here to attende the third annual capital footbal classic involving the Tuskege Warhawks and Morgan State College Bears at Griffith Stadium Saturday night at 8:30 o'clock.

Colonel Parrish, a native Southerner, is justifiably proud of the football record compiled by his undefeated and unscored-on Warhawks this season, and readily accepted an invitation to accompany the aviators here for their game of games.

It was learned yesterday that survivors of the famed Tuskegee Pursuit Squadron, first Negro aerial combat unit ever organized, will depart en route here via plane Friday, and will arrive in late afternoon.

These heroes will be presented in a half-time ceremony at Griffith Stadium Saturday night, when Washingtonians wil receive their chance to applaud the men who shot scores of enemy planes out of the skies over North Africa, Sicily and Italy.

Ted Atkinson Still Shines At Belmont

Belmont Park, Nov. 8 (AP).—There were two feature events on the third victory meeting program here today but once again it was Jockey Ted Atkinson who commanded most interest of the fans, 14,552 of which turned out for the war relief racing.

The Nation's pacemaking pilot bagged three winners in the first four events to boost his 1944 total to 254, but the Toronto lightweight and his followers struck a snag in the Ark Royal Purse, first of the two chief offerings. Riding the Howe Stable's odds-on choice, True North, Atkinson found his mount no match for E. D. Levinson's speedy filly, Miss Drummond, which clicked by two lenghts in 1:10 2/5 for six furlongs of the straightaway.

True North, which holds the track mark of 1:08 1/5, barely nosed out A. T. Simmons' Harvard Square for the place. Miss Drummond was a $5.40 second choice to True North, a 17-to-20 shot.

As most everyone expected, the two choices went out to dispute the leadership at close range, the filly taking a half length advantage. Saguaro had enough of the fast pace at the halfway mark and Harvard Square took over third position. Under her light weight of 105 pounds, Miss Drummond eased into the clear through the last furlong and true North, tiring under 121 pounds, had all he could do to stave off Harvard Square.

Atkinson bounced back into the winning column in the Cherbourg (Class C) Handicap, cofeature on the card. Scoring a jockey's "home run" and making his seasonal total 255, the Canadian booted Transformer to a length success at $10.80 for $2. It was the second winner of the day for the Vera S. Bragg Barn. First Draft, the favorite, took the place by a half length over Bel Reigh. The time for the mile and a furlong was 1:50 2/5.

47 National A.A.U. Records Are Established

New York, Nov. 8 (U.P.).—Headed by Ann Curtis, San Francisco mermaid who set 15 marks, American athletes established 47 national records this year and they will be submitted for approval at the fifty-sixth annual meeting of the National AAU at Atlantic City December 8-10, officials announced today.

The 18-year-old Miss Curtis set marks from 200 to 1000 yards. She won four titles in the national championships at Kansas City last summer.

Tied with five swim marks each are Alan Ford of Yale and the veteran Adolph Kiefer. Ford's 49.7 for the 100, clipping his 1943 record of 50.6, was regarded as the most remarkable swimming performance of the year. It was regarded as equivalent to a 4-minute foot-racing mile.

Headlining the track standards was a 4:06.4 indoor mile mark set by Gil Dodds of the Boston AA. Two other outstanding records were 2:29.6 record for 1000 meters by Bill Huse of the New York A. C., and the record-equaling 6.1 for 60 yards by Ed Conwell of New York.

Dewey's Lead in Michigan Cut As Ballot Mix-up Clouds Result

Detroit, Nov. 8 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, defeated Republican presidential candidate, was in danger tonight of losing his native State's 19 electoral votes to President Roosevelt.

With more than two million votes counted, Dewey's early lead of 123,000 had shrunk to a little more than 13,000, and the final outcome of the Michigan presidential vote appeared to rest in an official canvass of 100 Detroit precincts where an estimated 50,000 ballots were "lost."

The board of canvassers was called to meet at 10 a. m. Thursday to attempt to straighten out the tangle which officials said was caused by inexperienced election workers. Instead of consolidating eral soldier ballots, the officials tallies of regular ballots and Fed- said, these workers in some cases listed only the regular ballots; in others, only the soldier vote. Soldier ballots were counted with the civilian vote and no breakdown was available.

The presidential vote from 3664 of 3841 precincts, including a final unofficial tabulation of the Wayne County (Detroit) vote, pending tomorrow's canvass, showed: Roosevelt 997,744, Dewey 1,011,013.

The majority of some 213,000 which Dewey had piled up in the out-State precincts had been all but wiped out by the President's edge of nearly 200,000 in the metropolitan area. There were indications the total vote might exceed Michigan's record of 2,085,929 cast in 1940.

Gov. Harry F. Kelly, gaining his second successive term, led the entire State Republican ticket to victory, holding a margin of more than 200,000 over his Democratic opponent, Edward J. Fry.

The Democrats gained one seat in the Michigan congressional delegation when former Representative Frank E. Hook of Ironwood upset Representative John B. Bennett, Republican, in the Twelfth District. Eleven Republican incumbents, including Representative Clare E. Hoffman of Allegan who faced strong CIO opposition, and five Democrat incumbents, were reelected.

Dutch Order 200 American Pumps

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—The Dutch government has ordered 200 American pumps to drain the water from war-damaged Holland, the Worthington Pump & Machinery Co., which will supply the equipment, said today.

Total cost of the pumps and Worthington and General Motors Corp. Diesel engines, which will supply the driving power, is estimated at about three million dollars.

The entire drainage program, according to F. E. C. Everts, vice chairman of the Netherlands Purchasing Commission, will cost about 12 million dollars.

Delivery of the American pumps is scheduled to start early next year, and Everts said clearance has been given on the Diesel engines, high on wartime priority lists.

Lower Rates Forecast On Instalment Buying

New York, Nov. 8 (AP).—Lower rates for installment buying after the war were predicted today by Arthur O. Dietz, president of the Universal C. I. T. Credit Corp.

Dietz told the New York Society of Security Analysts that finance companies, by reducing installment buying rates, not only would lower distribution costs, but would contribute to increased consumption and a step-up in employment.

Citing an estimated annual post-war demand of seven billion dollars for such durable goods as automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, radios and air-conditioning equipment, Dietz said that 50 per cent of automobiles and 65 to 85 per cent of other durable goods will be bought on the installment plan.

Swing in Ohio Cuts GOP Lead, Menaces Taft

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 8 (AP).—A flood of votes out of northern Ohio's industrial area propelled a Democrat into the governorship today, sliced to a small margin a once-heavy lead held by the Republican National ticket in the State, and for a time threatened United States Senator Robert A. Taft's bid for reelection.

Mayor Frank J. Lausche, a Touseled-haired, smiling man of 48,overcame a lead built up by Republican Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati and rode into office on a majority approaching 100,000. He bore the indorsement of the CIO-Political Action Committee.

Returns from 9061 of 9306 polling places gave Lausche 1,529,754, Stewart 1,444,546.

Tide Swings Against GOP

The floodtide of votes that put Lausche across bit deep into a large lead that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey held all last night for the National Republican ticket, and cut a slender margin the once-large advantage that Taft, Republican, held over William G. Pickrel, Dayton Democrat.

Ont he basis of nearly complete returns, however, it appeared that both the Republican ticket and Taft would squeeze through.

Returns from 9123 polling places out of 9306 gave Dewey 1,547,081, Roosevelt 1,525,842.

In the senatorial race, 9081 polling places gave Taft 1,448,364 and Pickrel 1,424,059.

GOP Congresmen Lose

George H. Bender, Republican congressman-at-large, led his ticket by piling upa lead upward of 185,000 votes. The Democrats increased their representation in the national house from three to five members.

Edward J. Gardner defeated Harry P. Jeffrey, incumbent Republican, in the third, and Will R. Tham unseated Republican H. H. Carson in the 16th. The State's three Democratic congressmen were reelected.

Lausche will be the first Democrat to take over the State House since Gov. John W. Bricker defeated Martin L. Davey in 1938 and began the first of three two-year terms. Bricker passed up seking a fourth term to run for Presidential nomination, and emerged as Dewey's running mate.
